Colorado River Parley In Denver Reaches Impasse

THIRD PLAN REFUSED BY CALIFORNIA

Young Delegation Insists On Its Original Demand Of 4,563,000 Acre Feet

NEW SECRET SESSION

Amount Water Suggested For Coast State Is Not Enough, Says Governor

BULLETIN
DENVER, Colo., Aug. 31.—Still unable to agree, governors of five western states meeting here in an attempt to settle the Colorado river dispute adjourned their meeting at noon today to participate in the city's reception of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, transatlantic flyer.

(By United Press)
DENVER, Aug. 31.—The Colorado seven-state river conference appeared to have reached an impasse today as delegates again prepared to meet in secret session to discuss the third proposal of the upper basin state governors. From reliable sources it was learned that California's representatives yesterday flatly refused to accept any amount of water less than 4,563,000 acre feet from the Colorado river. In all of the proposals the amount of water allotted to the state was 4,200,000 acre feet. "It is not enough," Governor Young, of California, remarked quietly at the time the first two proposals were discussed. So negotiations on those proposals ended immediately. As delegates prepared to "dig in" for the battle to come, word seeped out of the conference room that Arizona commissioners had not definitely decided to accept the third proposal allocating 300,000 acre feet of water to Nevada; 3,000,000 to Arizona and 4,200,000 to California. While this gives Arizona an extra 1,000,000 acre feet of water from her tributaries, a proviso contained in the plan that the remainder of the unallocated water be divided between the two belligerent states in 1928 as provided in the original Santa Fe compact. California's refusal to accept the third proposal, it was understood, was prompted by the claim of her representatives that 4,563,000 acre feet of water are needed to care for perfected rights and insure the building of the All-American canal, which would supply the Imperial valley with water direct from the river instead of through the Imperial valley canal.

CALIFORNIA WILL "STAND PAT," SAYS GOVERNOR
SACRAMENTO, Aug. 31.—California expects to "stand pat" on her demand for at least 4,600,000 acre feet of water as this state's share of water from the Colorado river. To accept less would cheat hundreds of thousands of acres of dry but fertile land, particularly in the Coachella valley, of the water that is justly due them. If the seven-state conference in Denver goes to pieces because Arizona failed to ratify the seven-state compact, it doesn't mean Colorado development must fail. California then would be virtually underwriting the guarantee to upper basin states that they will get 7,500,000 acre feet annually. These declarations were made here today by Gov. C. C. Young, in commenting upon the new impasse reached at the seven-state conference.

Goodcell Is Head Of Oil Syndicate
MADERA, Calif., Aug. 31.—A syndicate, financed by Judge Rex B. Goodcell, of Los Angeles, and a group of wealthy Ohio oil operators today began operations five miles north of here to determine whether the district contained oil. Raymond S. Blatchley, noted geologist, and at one time state geologist of Ohio, after a period of exploration work in Madera county expressed the belief that the land was underlaid with oil. Lumber was brought to the scene today for the erection of a derricks. The syndicate is financed and no stock is for sale, according to Judge Goodcell.

VIERKOETTER LEADS FIELD IN $50,000 TORONTO SWIM MEET

Passengers On Grounded Vessel Safe

(By United Press)
SEATTLE, Aug. 31.—The steamer Princess Charlotte, Alaska liner of the Canadian Pacific Steamship company, which went aground last night on Vachanefski rock, 20 miles from Wrangell, Alaska, was floated after midnight, according to a radio message received here by the harbor radio.

The brief message stated that the U. S. coast and geodetic survey ship Explorer, which was preparing to pick up the 200 passengers who are said to have been put ashore on the beach. No further word had been received here this morning. The Charlotte struck the rock at 9:30 last night. SOS calls immediately were sent out and the Explorer, now conducting dredging operations in Wrangell narrows, and the Coast Guard cutter Unalga, stationed at Juneau, together with several tugs, rushed to her aid. According to the Canadian Pacific office, most of the passengers were eastern tourists, many of them Americans. The Princess Charlotte is of 3944 gross tons, is 325 feet in length and has a speed of 19 knots.

When Young was dragged into his boat after having led the race for the first five miles, he was bewildered, bleary eyed and exhausted. Young lacked the vim, fire and energy he showed in his Catalina victory. At 3 p. m., Vierkoetter enjoyed his first lunch of a few fish and coffee. In completing the second lap of the triangular marathon Vierkoetter overlapped three contestants who had made only seven miles since 8:30 a. m., but evidently were still hopeful. Vierkoetter's manager said the German would finish before dark. Official standing at 3:15 p. m.: 1—Vierkoetter, Germany. 2—Burdette, Toronto. 3—Ethel Herlihy, New York. 4—George S. Marchel, France. 5—Howard Chaffee, Ventura, Calif.

FEDERAL COURT ACTION LOOMS IN FILM FIGHT
Operators Will Attempt to Break City-wide Lock-out in Chicago
(By United Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Union moving picture machine operators prepared to go to federal court today in an effort to break the combination of exhibitors and film exchanges which threatened to keep Chicago picture and vaudeville shows closed indefinitely. The second moveless evening occasioned by lockout of the operators found the shutdown almost complete and agreement of exchange to refuse films to independent exhibitors made it certain that virtually all theaters would be closed by the end of the week unless unexpected developments occur. The operators announced they had employed attorneys to seek a federal injunction today restraining the film agencies from collaborating with the Chicago Exhibitors' association in enforcing the lockout. Many independent show owners, it was asserted, want to keep their theaters open. They refused to join the lockout instituted by the association "because of arbitrary demands of certain unions." Meanwhile, the situation was complicated by uneasiness among other union theater employees, janitors, stage hands and legitimate theaters, forcing them to close unless the picture and vaudeville houses opened. The musicians yesterday issued demands for an increased wage scale and improved working conditions. Musicians' contracts in some theaters expire Monday and the stage hands' union contract expired last night.

Minnesota Police Hold Californian
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 31.—Police today questioned Arthur Black, 18, of San Bernardino, Calif., and Roy Cutler, 17, of Omaha, in connection with several Minnesota robberies. They were captured last night after police allege they held up a filling station attendant in Rochester, Minn., kidnapped him and stole his automobile, after dropping him 12 miles from the city. Several other state robberies are traced to the pair, police declared.

MOTHER MURDERS SON AND THEN TAKES HER OWN LIFE
(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—While her 8-year-old son lay sleeping beside her today, Margaret McCusker, 36, shot him in the head, killing the child instantly, and then turned the revolver upon herself, ending her life. The woman's husband, T. F. McCusker, from whom she is separated, is believed to be living in Rochester, N. Y., with a daughter, Elsie, 18. One of three notes which the woman wrote before committing the crime, read as follows: "Please don't let Elsie know what I did. She is not well. Keep it out of the papers. I wrote her I was hurt in an automobile accident. I mailed the key for the trunk to Elsie." A neighbor girl heard shots and upon entering the house found the bodies. Investigation revealed the woman was without funds. An inquest has been ordered by the county coroner.

PRISONERS PRAISE DEPARTING WARDEN
SAN RAFAEL, Calif., Aug. 31.—Frank J. Smith, warden of the San Quentin penitentiary for the last two years, today turned over the institution to his successor, James B. Holohan. Just before he left, prisoners broke a custom of jeering a departing warden and gave him a letter signed by 600 of the oldest inmates. It read as follows: "You have been warden of this institution for over two years and it has without doubt been an arduous task. We who have affixed our names below have tenanted this institution during all the length of time and some of us very much longer. "We have come to realize that you made fairness the keynote of your administration; you were intelligent and human without lapse. Now that you leave us we cast about in our sincere appreciation and choose this document to acquaint you with the friendship and high esteem we bear you. May your fortunes henceforth be of the best."

BASEBALL RESULTS
YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Babe Ruth celebrated his return to the stadium today by hitting his 43rd home run of the season in the eighth inning of the game between the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox. The hit was made off Walzer and no one was on base. Ruth is now two up on his teammate, Lou Gehrig.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Bringing a grudge against French reporters and a vigorous reiteration that they had misquoted her statement on "easy" Parisian divorces, Marilyn Miller, musical comedy star, arrived today on the French liner Paris. Her contemplated divorce action against Jack Pickford has been dropped, Miss Miller said. "I am temporarily," she added hastily, "for there has been no reconciliation and there is not likely to be one."

WITH BRITISH AVIATORS ON OCEAN FLIGHT

(By United Press)
LONDON, Aug. 31.—Civic guards at Wexford, Ireland, reported to the United Press by telephone that a plane passed over New Ross, County Wexford, at 10:20 a. m. (5:20 a. m. eastern daylight time) flying in a westerly direction. The plane was believed to have been the "St. Raphael."

PLANE REPORTED OVER THURLES, IRELAND
QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Aug. 31.—The transatlantic mono-plane "St. Raphael," with two men and one woman aboard, was reported flying over Thurles, County Wexford, northwest toward Galway, at 10:40 a. m. today. The report was received by the chief superintendent of the civic guards here. The plane was reported flying low through foggy weather. (The time mentioned would be 4:40 a. m. eastern standard time. Thurles is about 40 miles northwest of New Ross, County Wexford, where a plane, which may have been the "St. Raphael," was sighted at about 10:20 a. m., which would be 4:20 a. m. eastern standard time.)

CIVIC GUARDS IN GALWAY SIGHT PLANE
LONDON, Aug. 31.—County Galway civic guards informed the United Press by telephone that an airplane, believed to be the transatlantic "St. Raphael," passed over Inveran at 12:10 p. m. today, heading for the Aran Islands. The direction indicated would mean that the plane was proceeding out from the Irish coast.

CRAFT FLYING DUE WEST IS SIGHTED
QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Aug. 31.—An unconfirmed report received here today said the transatlantic mono-plane "St. Raphael," with the 63-year-old Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Col. F. Minchin and Capt. Leslie Hamilton aboard, was reported, after noon today, to have passed Galway headed out to sea. The Fokker plane was making good progress, said the report. The plane left Upavon, England, at 7:31 a. m. (1:31 a. m. eastern standard time) today for Ottawa, Canada. It subsequently was reported over New Ross, Thurles and finally over Inveran, pursuing a course which varied from north-west to west. It was not possible in any instance to distinguish the markings of the plane, but officials were confident that it was the "St. Raphael." The weather was foggy over land and sea.

5000 COMMUNISTS THREATEN CANTON
LONDON, Aug. 31.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch today from Canton said Communists had raised 5000 men at Kai Fung and were threatening to overthrow the government. In response to a telegraphic request for aid, the government was reported rushing troops to the scene.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—Adm. Mark L. Bristol, new commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, arrived here today. British authorities announced that five battalions of troops would remain in Shanghai during the winter.

HOPE FOR REDFERN IS STRENGTHENED
BRUNSWICK, Ga., Aug. 31.—Hope flickered anew today that Paul Redfern, missing Georgia aviator, was alive either on some island between here and South America or in the vast depths of the Brazilian jungles. The report from the Norwegian steamer Christian, which arrived at Jamaica yesterday from Trinidad, strengthened the belief Redfern had been forced down in northern South America because of lack of gasoline.

OTTAWA, CANADA, IS GOAL OF HAMILTON AND MINCHIN IN BIG FOKKER MONOPLANE

Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Backer of Flight, Passenger on Perilous Ocean Venture

HAVE DIFFICULTY IN TAKEOFF

(By United Press)
UPAVON, Wiltshire, England, Aug. 31.—Carrying the 63-year-old Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim as a passenger, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchin took off at 7:31 a. m. today, in their big Fokker mono-plane "St. Raphael" on a non-stop flight to Ottawa, Canada.

FLYING TO CANADA

The takeoff was accomplished with much difficulty, an easy wind prevented the plane from starting from the place that had been selected. It was necessary to taxi the plane about the field for three-quarters of an hour before its wheels finally left the ground and rose slowly. The plane narrowly missed hitting the roof of one of the buildings at the east end of the airfield. Gradually it gained height, turned west and disappeared in the mist in the direction of Bath and Bristol. The princess and Roman Catholic Archbishop Mostyn, of Cardiff, arrived at the field at daybreak and the latter blessed the plane. The princess was dressed in a purple leather flying suit with knee breeches. The archbishop blessed her as she bent knee she kissed his ring. He wished her the best of luck. "I am confident that Captain Hamilton and Colonel Minchin will take me over," she said. "I have promised to cable as soon as we arrive."

"It's Grim Business"
"It's a grim business," said Hamilton, as he stepped into the plane. Minchin was cool and collected. He stepped into the cockpit as if it were an automobile. If successful, the British airmen will achieve three distinctions: 1—They will be the first to make the westward flight across the Atlantic. 2—To first to carry a passenger from Europe to America. 3—The first of the transatlantic flights, either direction, to include a woman. Two previous attempts have been made to fly from Europe to America. Last April the French aviator, Charles Nungesser and Francis Col, flew from Le Bourget field and never have been heard from. Several weeks ago two Junkers planes, each carrying a crew of two and a passenger, started but turned back because of bad weather. Weather conditions were reported excellent for the flight. The "St. Raphael" carried 900 gallons of gasoline, which was estimated to be sufficient for a 48-hour flight. The plane is equipped with a single 500 horsepower Bristol-Jupiter motor. It carried a collapsible rubber boat. The airmen carried a letter from the mayor of Bristol to the mayor of Ottawa.

Get Start on Competitors
By starting today, Hamilton and Minchin got the jump on French, English, German and American aviators, who had been waiting for weeks for favorable weather. The American, Charles A. Levine, only yesterday engaged Capt. Walter G. R. Hinchcliffe, British war ace, to pilot the Bellanca biplane "Columbia" back across the Atlantic to New York. Levine said he would not make the flight if some one beat him across. Capt. Frank T. Courtney had made preparations for several months to fly from Southampton, England, to New York in three stages, with stops at Ireland and Newfoundland. He made several attempts last week to start, but his flying boat would not leave the water. Three German planes have been ready for several weeks to make the flight—two Junkers planes and the Casper biplane in which Otto Koennecke expected to take off yesterday for Cologne, but was prevented because of an unsatisfactory wind. At Le Bourget, France, Leon Givron and Pierre Corbu, in their Farman plane, and Dieudonne Costes, in his Breguet plane, likewise waited only for the French weather bureau to give the signal. Also work on Tarascon's "Tango Bird" biplane had been completed. Other aviators, in Ireland, Italy and other parts of Europe, were negotiating for planes in which each hoped to be the first to fly from Europe to America.

Court Notes

Granted Divorce
A final decree of divorce has been granted to Mrs. Carrie S. Guthrie, from her husband, Edwin Guthrie, records at the court house showed today.

Guthrie is accused of crude and unmanly conduct in the complaint. Mrs. Guthrie asserted that she had endured her husband's actions for 25 years in order to keep a home for the six children, all of whom are now of full age. The complaint further alleges that in 1917 a 10-year-old son was forced to go to work owing to the asserted failure of Guthrie to provide for the household during the past two months.

Trial Tomorrow
Edward Shinn, charged with failure to provide for his four minor children, will be tried before Superior Judge James L. Allen tomorrow. A preliminary examination was held before Justice Kenneth Morrison August 16 and Shinn was admitted to bail of $500. Shinn and his wife are said to have separated July 8 and she is asserted to have testified at the preliminary examination that he had given her only nine dollars for the household during the past two months.

SECRETARY OF AUTO CLUB IS SPEAKER HERE

Ben Blow, field secretary of the National Automobile club, speaking at the meeting yesterday of the Santa Ana Exchange club, declared his belief that within five years motorists may travel from Port Angeles, Washington, to the Mexican border without being at any point more than 20 miles from the Pacific ocean.

National highway No. 101, will offer the avenue for following the ocean from the northern state to the republic to the south, and its completion within five years is predicted by the field secretary.

Pointing out that he had been engaged in highway work for the past 20 years, his experience starting in California and later extending to the middle west in planning and advising in the development of national highways.

Blow recounted many interesting experiments in the promotion of a system of national highways which now have been numbered.

Of particular interest was his recital of the activities of Theodore Geary, a wealthy man of Topeka, Mo., who assumed the chairmanship of the state highway commission and by sheer force of personality and a will to do forced a straight highway system across the state.

Geary took the bull by the horns, disregarded the wishes of the politicians and influence of the community leaders and put the system through the state regardless of whether it touched important cities between the starting and ending points.

Recounting highway development in California in the early history of that improvement, Blow asserted that in 1915 there was not a county within 150 miles of San Francisco that had a foot of paved highway, while Southern California had a perfect network of smooth surfaced roads.

Particularizing on the movement to procure better highways in the north and the opposition met with, the secretary said that women of the north should be given credit for support of programs that were successful only because the women threw their force and influence into the battle to get better highways.

He cited Santa Cruz county as a concrete example of the activities of women, and declared that organizations of women eventually forced the supervisors of that county to submit a bond issue—an issue that was successful because the women gave their unanimous support.

Co-operation between Los Angeles and Chicago. Blow declared, will make National Highway No. 66, the leading avenue of travel between the two cities.

Discussing state affairs as they pertain to gas taxes, registration fees and the designation of major and secondary highways, the field secretary asserted his belief that an error had been made in reducing the registration fees when the first gas tax was made effective and in the designation of state highways.

He declared that the Santa Ana canyon road should be a part of the state system, pointing out that 90 per cent of the traffic over the canyon road originates outside of Orange county.

He also asserted that there should be a revision of the highway financing plan in California.

Blow will speak at the meeting of the Lions club tomorrow.

RANKIN'S THIRD FLOOR

With the installing of new wall and show cases, display tables and floor coverings the newly renovated third floor of the Rankin dry goods store presents an unusually attractive front to the shopper who visits it.

The latest fixtures have been purchased to use in the display of merchandise and counters have been improved for the benefit of patrons.

These new fixtures are the type especially designed for the various kinds of merchandise that is represented on this floor. For this reason goods are kept in better condition while in stock. As all cases have been made with plate glass fronts the merchandise is visible in every section.

The display tables and wall cases are of birch with mahogany finish bases and highly polished, natural color tops. The inside of every case and drawer is also finished in this shiny surfaced natural color wood. The handsome linoleum floor covering is a pattern of green and cream. These colors form a harmonizing background for the rest of the fixtures.

The Rankin company is having the entire outside of the building repainted in preparation for the fall season.

LOCAL COLLEGE TO HOLD TESTS NEXT TUESDAY

The first gun to be fired preparatory to the opening of the Santa Ana college, will explode next Tuesday when 100 applicants for admission begin shooting ink in the English entrance test at College hall.

The applicants will be given a list of 10 topics on which they will write essays of several hundred words in an attempt to convince the college authorities that they are masters of the English language.

The examination is necessary for all freshmen and for others who have come here from outside schools with the idea of entering the college. After the morning ordeal, the new students will be served lunch in the Y.W.C.A. hut, with the French club of the college as host.

In the afternoon the aspirants for college rank will take a psychological test under the direction of McKee Fisk, assistant dean.

Fisk announced today that all handbooks of grammar and rhetoric should be busy during the next few days, for the test in English will be of the same standard as those given by the University of California. The northern institution recognizes the grades given here and the examiners will be correspondingly careful to spot split infinitives, incomplete sentences, and pronouns which have no relatives to fall back on for support. Mrs. Eleanor Northcross and Miss A. T. Miller will be in charge of the English test.

Wednesday of next week will be freshman day and all new students will gather to learn about the ideals and customs of the college. Instructions for registration and selection of courses will be given. The collegians will have lunch at noon in the cafeteria.

Thursday will be registration day for old students, while the new arrivals will register on Friday. Instruction will begin in earnest on the following Monday.

CHANGE PLEAS AND ASK FOR PROBATION

With the court ready and a jury summoned to give them a second trial today, three men and a woman reversed their former pleas of not guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old girl, and applied for probation.

Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Wilton, Cecil Burke and William Albert Culley were tried August 23 on the delinquency charge and the jury had the case in its hands for over 24 hours before announcing that it was unable to reach a verdict.

The second hearing was set for today. As the trial opened, Mr. and Mrs. Wilton and Cecil Burke entered pleas of guilty. Judge James L. Allen sent the trio from the court room to have the probation papers prepared.

Culley, meanwhile, called for the jury to try his case on the same charge, but when the jury appeared, he too had decided to ask for probation and entered a plea of guilty. Judge Allen set the date of the probation hearings for September 15.

The four defendants are said to have held wild parties at Balboa and San Diego, where the young girl is asserted to have been a guest. The first trial resulted in a vote of 10 to two for conviction. Six women were on the jury, two of whom voted for acquittal.

NEW HIGHWAY IS APPROVED BY BEACH C. C.

Extension of Main street from Santa Ana city limits to Corona del Mar as proposed by development interests affiliated with the Irvine company was approved by the directors of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held last night in the Bank of Balboa.

The extension would provide another thoroughfare for traffic from northern and inland points to Corona del Mar and Newport Beach, according to K. I. Fulton, who proposed that the idea be approved.

The directors also approved the advertising committee's recommendation that the sum of $1500 be expended for newspaper advertising between now and December 31.

The board voted to ask the city council to approve the application of the Parkinson Island syndicate for permission to improve the island along lines outlined in a new set of specifications and plans recently completed. The contemplated improvement would cost around $750,000, it is estimated.

The directors voted $100 toward a Star boat to the National Regatta at Long Island, N. Y., in September.

It was reported that approximately $300 of a goal of $600 for Newport Beach for the harbor high school mandamus suit against R. P. Mitchell, school superintendent, had been raised.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO OPERATING STILL

After his attorney had been involved in charges of contempt of court, said to have resulted from drunkenness when he represented the defendant at a preliminary examination August 24, J. J. Addington pleaded not guilty before Superior Judge James L. Allen today when he was arraigned on a charge of possessing a still. The case has been set for trial September 13.

As O. V. Willson, counsel for Addington, prepared to begin his defense in Morrison's court last Wednesday, the proceedings came to an abrupt halt as Willson was pronounced drunk by a doctor who was hurriedly summoned. The attorney was ordered to the county jail by Justice Morrison, where he spent the day. The case was continued at that time.

Following Willson's release the following morning, he was met by a Santa Ana police officer, who took him to the city hall where a further charge of contempt was entered. Willson was released on $50 bail.

The first charge of contempt is said to have resulted from drunkenness, while the second was based on abusive language which Willson is asserted to have used in the justice court.

CUPS FOR SCOTS DRILL ON DISPLAY

Cups to be awarded as first and second prizes in band and drill team competitions by Scot organizations at the county fair on the evening of September 9 (Admission Day) were placed on exhibition today at the Pacific-Southwest bank by L. E. Roach, a member of the committee.

According to Roach at least two Scot bands will enter the band competition. It is anticipated twelve drill teams will contest for first and second honors.

There will be first and second prizes in each division, the cups being donated by Santa Ana Pyramids, No. 41, and Fullerton Pyramids, No. 40, Ancient Egyptian Order of Scots.

Pointing out that some of the best uniformed drill teams in the southland will participate in the contest, Roach said that the evening program to be given by the Scots in the arena will be snappy and brilliant.

SPEEDING RETRIAL IS STARTED TODAY

The case of George J. Dils, 2020 North Plymouth avenue, Los Angeles, which resulted in a hung jury in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court a week ago, was started again today, with Justice Andrew Wilson on the bench. Justice Morrison is on his vacation.

Dils was charged by James Cain, state traffic officer, with speeding 50 miles an hour along the San Diego highway on July 23.

The case is being tried by jury and will probably be completed this afternoon. Attorney C. N. Mozley is representing the defendant.

45 New Deputies Are Named Today

Forty-five new deputy sheriffs were named today. Sheriff Sam Jenkins' force is not to be increased that much permanently. The new men are to be special deputies merely for the purpose of policing the fair grounds during the Orange county fair.

Most of those named are American Legion men of Santa Ana, together with veterans of the Spanish American war, and they are merely to do guard duty at the grounds. Their authority as deputy sheriffs will expire with the last day of the fair.

CITY BAND AT ANAHEIM PARK THIS EVENING

Mayor F. L. Purinton today issued a statement urging Santa Ana residents to attend the concert to be given at the Greek theater, Anaheim, tonight, by the Santa Ana municipal band.

Pointing out that the band is presenting the program as a courtesy to the Mother Colony, at the request of the city council of that city, the mayor said attendance by Santa Anans would give them an opportunity to see the fine outdoor theater which Anaheim has provided for her citizens for public meetings and public musical affairs. The latter is located in the park at Anaheim.

D. C. Cianfoni, director of the band, has arranged the following program, which will start at 8 p. m.:

March, "The Lions" (D. C. Cianfoni); overture, "William Tell" (G. Rossini); nocturne, "The Monastery Bells" (Wely); selection, "Robin Hood" (R. DeKoven); vocal, "Goodbye" (P. Tosti); Robert Brown, baritone; selection, "Il Trovatore" (G. Verdi); waltz, "Esperanza" (E. Waldteufel); quartette, "Il Rigoletto" (G. Verdi); characteristic, "The Village Life" (D. C. Cianfoni); selection, "Carmen" (Bizet).

Autumn Honeymooners To Visit Canyons On Their Trip

Bryce and Grand canyons were to be included in the honeymoon itinerary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilbur Stewart, whose marriage of Saturday morning, September 27, was a quietly charming affair, held at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. McDougal, 617 East Seventeenth street.

Mrs. Stewart was Miss Jennie Louise Pollard, daughter of Mrs. M. C. Pollard, pioneer resident of Tustin. The choice of the Rev. Mr. McDougal as officiating minister was dictated by the fact that he was for a number of years, their pastor of the Tustin Presbyterian church.

The ministerial home was given a particularly festive air for the occasion, by the use of many asters and gladioli in rich autumnal colors.

Miss Pollard chose a becoming costume of beige and was accompanied by Mrs. W. H. I. Penn as matron of honor, attired in smart black and white. Mr. Penn assisted Mr. Stewart as best man. Other guests were members of the family circle, Mrs. Pollard and another daughter, Mrs. Dickinson of Corona, with her daughter, Miss Charlotte Dickinson, little Miss Gertrude Pollard of Tustin, the Rev. and Mrs. McDougal, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dickinson of Santa Ana, and the bridegroom's father and sister, C. H. Stewart and Miss Juliet Stewart of New Jersey, who timed their wedding trip to be here for the wedding.

After the happy couple had taken their wedding vows before the Rev. Mr. McDougal, the entire party left for the Ketter cafe where the rose room had been reserved for the wedding breakfast. Rose tinted sweet peas and trailing smilax were used with charming effect to deck the room, and pale green candles flickered amidst the flowers of the table.

A week-end and one of the near-by beach towns, was followed by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart at Corona where Mrs. Dickinson entertained the family members at a formal dinner honoring the young couple ere their departure for Bryce canyon and thence to the Grand canyon.

Upon their return they will make their home on Mr. Stewart's ranch at Covina. The senior Mr. Stewart and Miss Juliet Stewart have left for New Jersey where the latter will teach this winter in the schools of her home town.

Mrs. Katherine Baker, mother of Lawrence Baker, was injured Sunday afternoon, when she had a hard fall at her home which is on Yorba Linda boulevard. Mrs. Baker was convalescing nicely from a paralytic stroke and the fall has forced her to bed again.

Robert Sutton has accepted a position with the Yorba Linda Mercantile company. He takes the place of Ralph McQuire, who has resigned.

Miss Rosetta Dorsey has accepted a position as office assistant with Dr. Beatrice Golding, Fullerton chiropractor.

Mrs. W. V. Marshburn has returned home after a month spent in Huntington Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston Smith and daughters, Celestia, May and Bertha, enjoyed camping trip to Idyllwild over the week end. H. E. Anderson looked after their filling station during their absence.

Bank Official Gives Party on Eve of Eastern Trip

An established custom among the members of the staff at the Bank of Italy (formerly the Orange County Trust and Savings bank) is that of celebrating birthdays in some fitting fashion and since today is the natal day of George E. Peters, assistant cashier, he chose to combine a birthday party with one of farewell before his departure for a two months' eastern trip, and last night staged a delightful dinner at the Pennant cafe.

All the members of the bank staff gathered at the chosen spot for a 6 o'clock dinner. Tables had been drawn together until the diners surrounded one large festal board where a most appetizing menu was served amidst laughter and cheery conversation. The guests were especially interested in their host's plans for his long-anticipated outing.

Charles L. Cotant was voted another eloquent after-dinner speaker, for his talk consisted of an unexpected invitation to continue the dinner party into a theater party at the Yost Broadway. To complete the merriment, Attorney Clyde Bishop gave one of his famous after-dinner talks, in which he assured the guests that in order that no one feel slighted, Mr. Peters had entertained at dinner, Mr. Cotant at the theater, and himself at speaking.

A surprise feature of the evening to the dinner host, was the presentation to him of a handsome bound record book in which he is to record his experiences in the east for the future entertainment of his family and friends. Accompanying the book was a leather purse with the balance of the gift fund for him to use as he sees fit.

Mr. Peters is a baseball fan of the utmost enthusiasm, and it has always been his dream to see the world series. That dream is to be realized this fall, and he will leave Friday morning for the east, traveling by way of Prince Rupert and the Canadian Rockies and planning to visit a number of eastern cities in addition to those where the big games will be staged.

Enjoying last night's farewell dinner party with him and Mrs. Peters, and the theater party which followed, were Charles L. Cotant, J. E. Liebig, J. A. Blanchard, J. L. Hey, T. H. Warner, Charles Sauters, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bishop, Miss Flora Hell, Mrs. June Clark, Mrs. Ralph Best, Miss Alma Falk, Mrs. Della Davis, Mrs. Katherine McKenzie, Mrs. Billy Coltrane, Miss Lucyle Bastian, Mrs. Connie Kelsey, L. E. Richards, Miss Thurtza Marrs, H. Schlink, John Hartke, Roy J. Inlene, W. B. McClure, Mrs. Florence Brown, Miss Nora Wunderlich and Stanley Alexander.

Wedding Festivities For Miss Lela Ford And Buell Faulkner

Saturday evening, September 27, was chosen by Miss Lela Pearl Ford and Buell Faulkner, as their wedding date, and at present the happy pair of honeymooners are speeding northward with the intention of spending a month amidst the mountains and valleys of Oregon and Washington.

Mr. Faulkner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Faulkner, 1514 North Bristol street, and his bride is the daughter of Luther Ford, also of this city.

For her wedding, Miss Ford was guided by the old couplet, "married in blue, always be true," and chose georgette in palest blue over a satin slip for her gown. With this she wore a very beautiful Spanish shawl, and a circlet of rhinestones gleamed from her dark hair. Miss Katherine Fitchsen in peach taffeta, and Miss Dorothy Porter in rose georgette, were her bridesmaids.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper at Ketter's, after which Mr. Faulkner and his bride left for the north amidst a shower of rice and good wishes.

After the first of October they will be at home to their friends at 818 North Bristol street, and Mr. Faulkner will resume his duties at the Dodge Brothers Motor Car company where he has been employed for the past seven years. His bride has been employed at the K-B Drug company on North Main street for the past year.

Pre-Nuptial Party

As a final pre-nuptial courtesy to Miss Lela Ford on the eve of her marriage to Buell Faulkner, was the delightful miscellaneous shower given by Miss Katherine Fitchsen, whose home is on North Yorba street.

Autumn blossoms in gorgeous colors were used in profusion throughout the rooms, where the guests found a lively sewing contest awaiting them. The contest yielded an array of neatly hemmed tea towels for Miss Ford's linen shelves, and also a first prize for speed and neatness, to Mrs. E. Faulkner, and a second to Miss Vera Dallas.

When these were bestowed, Miss Ford received "guest prize," an array of very lovely gifts selected for her by her assembled friends.

Small tables were then produced and arranged with linens and nut-cups reflecting the rainbow tones of pink, green, lavender and yellow. A slender crystal vase of pompon dahlias in the prevailing tones, decorated each table, and a delectable fruit salad with wafers and ice cream-cake, formed the refreshment menu served by Miss Fitchsen with the assistance of her mother and sister, Mrs. Margaret Fitchsen and Mrs. Alvin Dierker.

Those asked to share the pleasant evening in the Fitchsen home were the honoree, Miss Ford, Mrs. W. E. Faulkner, Mrs. L. Faulkner, Mrs. E. Faulkner, Mrs. John Stirling, Mrs. R. Schiefen, Mrs. C. Mason, Mrs. J. Stanton, Mrs. Alvin Dierker, Mrs. O. West, and the Misses Vera Dallas, Dorothy Porter, Vera Stirling, Lydia Waaker, Ethel House, Margaret Fitchsen and Clara Fitchsen.

Attractive Series of Butterfly Luncheons Given in Tustin

Butterflies, fluttering everywhere, formed the decorative motif for a series of delightful bridge luncheons which Mrs. George Prather has just completed at her home in Tustin, where three different parties were staged within less than a week.

Mrs. Prather is just concluding a very successful year as worthy matron of Santa Ana chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and the party series complimented the elective and appointive officers who have served her so faithfully, and a little group of prominent members who have acted as substitutes in the various chairs when the necessity arose.

The three parties were identical in plan, and each one opened with the guests pausing to make a wish over the wishing stones of the pathway leading to the hospitable door. Within the house, drawn shades gave a cool twilight effect to the rooms, where quantities of golden glow and purple dahlias made brilliant spots of color. But the greatest charm lay in the butterflies that seemed to hover everywhere. For the hostess had contrived to have the brilliant winged little creatures in every conceivable spot of her home, and the luncheon menu which was served, carried the idea yet further, for the fried chicken and delicious vegetables of the first course, were succeeded by a butterfly salad, and that gave place in turn to a butterfly dessert course.

At each place was a dainty favor—a scent bottle with gay wings, simulating the winged creatures of the air.

Bridge tables were arranged in the pergola of the lovely garden, and each afternoon an interesting contest was staged. Prizes at the first two luncheons, were identical, embroidered pillow cases for first, embroidered guest towels for second, and colonial oil powder puffs for third. They were taken on the first afternoon by Mrs. W. R. Sylvester, Mrs. Walter Wright and Mrs. Eugene Reif and on the second, by Mrs. T. R. Overton, Mrs. Bert Dawson and Mrs. George Shippe.

On the last afternoon, Mrs. William J. Dean was presented with pillow cases, while a charming box of candy with an emblem suitable for mother, was awarded Mrs. A. W. Getchell, and an appropriate motto to Mrs. Amanda Holmes.

Mrs. Prather made the parties an opportunity to remember her official family with charming gifts as souvenirs of a happy and successful year. A silken handkerchief beautifully embroidered, was presented each woman on her staff, while to her worthy patron, Dr. C. T. Cleland, and the sentinel, H. J. Roberts, she gave leather belts with sterling silver buckles.

The White House in Washington was designed by James Hoban, a Dublin architect.

GRAPE DAY AT ESCONDIDO TO BE ON SEPT. 9

Staging of an open air pageant, many additional features in the way of exhibits, showing the agricultural resources of Escondido valley, and a large parade will be the events stressed in the annual Grape day celebration which will take place September 9. Admission free. This year will bring the twentieth observance of the annual festival.

The pageant, which will be presented in a natural amphitheater, located about a mile south of grape day park, the center of attractions, is "Felicita and the Battle of San Pasqual." It is based on the history of the famous battle of San Pasqual between the famous American dragoons under General Kearney and the Mexican lancers led by General Pico. The pageant-play was written by Dr. B. F. Sherman, director of the Escondido Community Arts club, after a study of several years into the romantic history of Escondido and surrounding country.

In order to illustrate to the world at large that Escondido and tributary country boasts many diversified products of the soil, there will be an exhibit of agriculture this year.

Much attention is being given entertainment at Grape Day park. Those in charge of the parade are assured of the largest entry list in history. As usual, the grape day association will distribute 10 tons of grapes to all visitors on that day.

DANCE HALL MANAGER FREE AFTER JURY HEARS MUSIC

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 31.—Harry Tudor was cleared yesterday by a jury in justice court of a charge of disturbing the peace, when a verdict of not guilty was returned in one ballot.

Saxophone players may not trouble their notes to their hearts content through the amplifiers perched high on the roof of the Rendezvous ballroom without feeling that they are disturbing the peace.

The complaint was filed by Frank Knight, local apartment house owner, who introduced 35 witnesses to prove his side of the charge. The jury hearkened, however to the wailing strains of a jazz orchestra and returned a verdict of not guilty.

The case was tried before Justice Andrew H. Wilson and took the best part of two days to hear. The justice chambers were not large enough, so the trial took place in the Boy Scout hall.

Roland Thompson, of Santa Ana, represented Tudor, and Lew Blodgett, deputy district attorney, prosecuted the case.

CIANFONI WILL GIVE POPULAR BAND CONCERT

An interesting program, featuring many old favorites, will be presented tomorrow evening, at the weekly concert given in Birch park by the Santa Ana municipal band, according to D. C. Cianfoni, director.

Among other popular numbers, the band will feature Victor Herbert's "American Fantasia," also the overture from Plotow's "Farther," a selection of many loved old southern favorites, and old fashioned songs.

Victor Herbert was born in Dublin, Ireland, Feb. 1, 1859, and was a grandson of Samuel Lover, the famous Irish novelist. At the age of seven, he was sent to Stuttgart, Germany, to study music, where his skill as violinist later won him a place in the court orchestra there.

Coming to New York in 1886, he was appointed solo cellist in the Metropolitan orchestra, later holding the same position in the Philharmonic under Theodore Thomas, also Seidl's orchestra, of which he was appointed associate conductor. In 1894, he was appointed bandmaster of the 22nd Regiment, as successor to Gilmore, and in 1898 conducted the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, composed of seventy performers.

Victor Herbert composed many spirited pieces for orchestra and cello, a "cello concerto; an oratorio "The Captive," which was presented at the Worcester Festival. Closing the field of comic operettas as a mode of self-expression, he produced over forty of these with astonishing facility, including "Eileen," "The Wizard of the Nile," very successful; "The Serenade," "The Idol's Eye," "The Fortune Teller," and "The Singing Girl," all very successful, this success justified by the unusual combination of Irish musical humor and German scholarship.

Herbert was well liked, possessing a boyish enthusiasm about him which captured all hearts, and when, now and then, he personally conducted one of his works, the joy was unbounded. He had a happy faculty of composing music which, like that of Johann Strauss or Edvard Grieg, was popular and yet thoroughly artistic, abounding not only in catchy tunes, but in happy details which might escape the attention of the average theater-goer, but were there for those who have ears to hear and relish them. Many of Herbert's melodies are as fresh and almost as unique as Grieg's. They abound in his operettas.

Well-known musical critics, among them Henry T. Finck, rate Victor Herbert the greatest musician of all time with Irish blood in his veins, feeling that his talent is fully equal to, if not even superior, to that of Balfe, Wallace, John Field, Sullivan and Stanford.

Other well-known works of Herbert include "Babes in Toyland," "Madrigals," "Rose of Algeria," "The Red Mill," "Naughty Marietta," "Mile Modiste," "The Enchantress," and "Natoma."

The California drum corps which is composed of members of Roosevelt camp, U. S. W. V., of Los Angeles, won first place in the contest which was staged at the national convention at Detroit, Mich., according to a telegram received today by The Register from Charles E. Dixon of this city, state department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans.

The Roosevelt corps won the contest held at the state convention at Santa Cruz in May which made them eligible to enter the national competition from which they emerged victorious.

Dixon's telegram stated that the California delegation had proven very popular on the preceding day as it had arranged to distribute Orange county grown oranges to every one attending the convention.

He also stated that more than 20,000 veterans of the Spanish war paraded during one of the celebrations.

Other Santa Ana persons who are present at the convention are Mr. and Mrs. James Nourse of Owens drive and A. Dierke. Mrs. Nourse is representing the Calumet auxiliary of this city.

Mack House Wins From Chevalier

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 31.—Un-corking a hard right to the chin, Mack House, Negro heavyweight, of Los Angeles, knocked out Leon Chevalier, San Francisco, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round bout. Battling Boulalan, San Francisco lightweight, fought a draw with Jose Souza, of Merced in a six round semi final go,

COUNTY RADIO DEALERS READY FOR BIG SHOW

Only two exhibit spaces at the Orange County Radio Preview, to be held at the Anaheim Elks club September 21, 22, 23 and 24, remained today, following the meeting of Orange county radio dealers last night at the club, at which time space for the radio classic was assigned.

There was every indication that if twice the amount of room available in the beautiful ballroom of the club could be secured that it would be signed up in a hurry, members of the Preview executive committee said.

The two remaining spaces have been tentatively allotted to radio dealers who are away on their respective vacations and it is expected that within a few days the exhibit room will have been completely signed.

The radio preview is to be confined entirely to Orange county radio dealers. The radio show in Anaheim, it was said, will probably be the first large radio show in the United States planned entirely by the dealers. It was pointed out that the purpose of the exposition is not to make money for the radio dealers, but to build good will for radio.

That harmony and co-operation have already been instilled into the radio dealers through the frequent meetings to discuss plans for the show is demonstrated by the fact that several of the dealers representing the same lines are joining together in large exhibit booths.

Walter Biddick, of Los Angeles, program director, was present last night and read to the dealers a list of radio entertainers who will be at the show on the respective evenings, the list representing the "cream" of the Los Angeles radio favorites.

An extensive publicity campaign, utilizing radio stations and daily newspapers, will not be started until after the Los Angeles radio show and the Orange county fair have been held, it was said, it being the desire of the radio dealers to lend every co-operation to those in charge of the two events.

The radio dealers are to meet again Tuesday evening at the Elks club, Anaheim.

JACKIE FIELDS IS WINNER FROM GANS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—Jackie Fields, former 135 pounder, today entered the ranks of challengers for the junior welterweight crown held by Mushy Callahan, by virtue of a clean-cut decision last night over Baby Joe Gans, Negro lightweight, in a 10-round bout at the Olympic.

Fields weight was announced at 140½ pounds, and Gans at 137½.

The first round was even with both battlers engaged in a close, but not a particularly exciting, battle. The second and third rounds Fields scoring light but effective punches, with Gans spending much effort in clinching and holding.

Gans opened up to take the fourth and fifth rounds, while Fields annexed the sixth by a shade. The seventh was even, with Fields setting the pace in the eighth, ninth and tenth and piling up a big lead at the finish.

Herman Auerbach, Salt Lake middleweight, by two knockdowns defeated Freddy Mack in the semi-windup.

Benny Chavez, Colorado featherweight, defeated Joe Pimental in the semi-windup.

Sandy Garrison, welterweight, knocked out Bert McCoy in the third round of the feature preliminary.

Young Terry scored a technical knockout over Gerald Rooney in the third round of the curtain-raiser.

tent with a reasonable outlay of money.

Surveys of the channel of the Santa Ana river are necessary, he explained, to enable the flood control organization to devise a permanent and certain stream bed. If a dam is erected, the stream will be much smaller in size and can be restricted to a smaller bed, thus preventing it from wandering over the valley as it has in the past.

Incidental to the report, Bailey stated that preliminary state surveys indicate that from 40,000 to 50,000 acre feet of water are lost in Orange county each year through evaporation from damp lands where the underground water level is only a few feet below the surface.

Bailey probably will present to the supervisors at the next meeting an estimate of the cost of flood control work in his organization for the next year. The board will thus be able to include the estimate in the budget for the coming year.

AT THE THEATERS

Charlie Murray and George Sidney in "The Life of Riley," a circus comedy, which starts a three day run at the Yost Broadway theater tonight.

Syd Chaplin in "The Better Ole" a Warner picture which is the current attraction at the Yost theater.

WEST COAST-WALKER

Strange details of the Russian revolution that overthrew the government of the czar and resulted in the death of the ruler, and odd bits of inside history of the struggle were collected in one of the most difficult pieces of studio research ever attempted, for the filming of "Mockery," Lon Chaney's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, now playing at the West Coast-Walker theater. In it are several absolutely authentic details of the revolution gathered from the inner archives of Bolshevik leaders and never before related.

Chaney plays a strange, hermit-like peasant thrust into the maelstrom by a strange trick of fate, changing from a harmless peasant and servant to a dangerous menace under the last of revolutionary leaders, and then, in the end, proving the savior of the heroine who depended on his loyalty.

Benjamin Christensen, famous Danish director of "The Devil's Circus," directed the new picture. Barbara Bedford plays the heroine and Ricardo Cortez is seen in the romantic lead, with Charles Puffy, Kai Schmidt, Emily Fitzroy, Mack Swain and other noted artists of the screen.

It is an original story by Director Christensen, scenarized by Bradley King. Secret plots that marked the progress of the revolution and the ascendancy of the Bolsheviks were incorporated into the play, thus making it valuable as a historic drama as well as a gripping mystery play.

YOST THEATER

Here is entertainment of the first water. A war play with all of the horrors left out and all of the laughs left in. They are the laughs that first resounded around the world when the world got acquainted with Bruce Bairnsfather's cartoons and continued through the success of "The Better 'Ole" as a stage play.

Now, on the screen, with Syd Chaplin giving a memorable performance as Old Bill, "The Better 'Ole" seems more breathlessly funny than ever. The screen version is not old stuff done over, but new stuff that retains the quality of its predecessors.

It is a quality of steady, thoroughly human humor that rises at times to a wild hysteria of glee.

Wooden Horse 40 Years Old In Local Shop

Dapple and takes great pride in his appearance. He has been a lover and owner of many horses since his early youth and of all the many blue-blooded equines that have been his care, there is now left only old Dapple, who has no blood at all, neither blue nor red.

"Laddie," the blind horse at one time famous throughout this vicinity, was the property of Mr. Schultz. Everyone for miles around knew blind Laddie, watched him race at county fairs. Laddie was shot three years ago when it was found he was hopelessly ill. He was the grandson of Hamiltonia X and took the blue ribbon at the local county fair two months before his death, for the best combination horse exhibited.

Mr. Schultz disposed of his last horse, Roany, a saddle horse, to Miss Alice McDougall, Seventeenth street, some time ago so it is no wonder he is very considerate of Dapple, the only horse he has to look after. Children still love to sit on Dapple's broad back, it is said, quite as well as they did when horses were not the novelty they now are. If Mr. Schultz has his way Dapple will be admired and mounted when these little folk are in turn middle-aged and when it may be, there will be no more horses of flesh and blood for which the harness-maker can stitch and make harnesses.

SCRIBES WILL BE GUESTS OF FAIR

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 31.—Newspaper editors of California will be guests at the California State fair at the opening next Saturday, which has been designated California Press day, according to an announcement by Charles W. Palne, secretary of the state board of agriculture.

Representatives of the press will be welcomed by Governor Young at a press banquet in the horticultural building at noon.

During the afternoon they will inspect the various exhibits, attend the first night horse show, or frolic on the midway or concession zone.

forces, finally winning his sergeant's stripes.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

A Mardi Gras and Venetian celebration combined can't be more picturesque and colorful than the circus background that figures in "The Life of Riley," the riotous film comedy co-starring George Sidney and Charlie Murray, coming to the Yost Broadway theater today, Thursday and Friday.

Elephants and camels, wild men and bearded women, clowns and hula girls in this sequence vie with a carload of fireworks, exploding among the principal players, a riot and a village fire, and many other comedy elements, in providing laughs and thrills.

Rural comedy has in the past been considered natural mirth material, but in combination with such "exotic" thrills it is doubly effective in "The Life of Riley."

The famous comics of stage and screen, Sidney and Murray, are characterized as rural town Fire Chief and Police Chief, respectively, and Sam Hardy, Myrtle Stedman, June Marlowe, Stephen Carr, Edwards Davis and Bert Woodruff have interesting supporting roles.

TEMPLE THEATER

"Little Lord Fauntleroy," starring Mary Pickford, closes a four-day run at the Temple theater tonight, and a village fire, and many other comedy elements, in providing laughs and thrills.

"Pleasures of the Rich," with Helene Chadwick and Jack Mulhall, and the "Taxi Mystery," featuring Edith Roberts and Robert Agnew, a double bill, begins a three-day stay tomorrow.

ARMENIAN TO SPEAK HERE AGAIN TONIGHT

Circumstances and conditions never make the man, but man can make both circumstances and conditions pay large dividends to him if he will, according to Babadsr Krikor Baghigian, Armenian philosopher, last evening in his lecture at the Ebell Club before a large crowd.

This was the second of a series of lectures given by Baghigian this week in Santa Ana. The speaker used for his topic "Your Fortune is in Your Misfortune." The speaker declared that no country on earth had the opportunities to make this so possible, and where this truism had been so proven many times, as here in America, which he calls "The land of opportunity."

Tonight Baghigian will give the last of the series of lectures to the public of Santa Ana at the Ebell Club at 8 o'clock. His topic for this evening will be "Have What You Want and Have It More Abundantly."

"THE McNARY-HAUGEN BILL"

Santa Ana, Aug. 30, 1927.
Editor Register: The section of the country that President Coolidge is now visiting constitutes a very small part of the farming area of the United States. A dispatch in last night's Register points out that farmers in that section, generally, are not vicious because of the veto of the McNary-Haugen farm bill. Quite naturally farmers do not intend to bite anyone because of the veto of this bill, as Americans are quite orderly in their demonstrations, political or otherwise.

The northwest is a wheat country, and wheat at present is bringing a good price. But let administration leaders visit the corn and cotton belt and they are apt to find a genuine political revolt. It is quite likely that labor will join the agricultural group, and if an equalization fee is not brought about by the forthcoming session of congress, a third political party that cannot be controlled by Wall street, will be not at all surprising.

Why was the bank bill signed and the duty on pig iron raised? The McNary-Haugen bill was rejected? Farm values have dropped $20,000,000,000 in six years and 3,000,000 people have left the farms. It seems very unlikely then that farmers will be put to sleep with political soothing syrup—promises of relief.

RAILROAD CAR SHORTAGE NOW THING OF PAST

"There will never again be a car shortage."

This positive declaration was made at yesterday's meeting of the Santa Ana Rotary club by H. G. Taylor, former railroad commissioner of the state of Nebraska, recently selected as manager of the department of public relations of the American Railway Association. Taylor is a recognized national authority on railroad affairs, his selection to the post of manager of public relations being a reflection of his prominence in that field. He is in Santa Ana as a visitor at the home of his uncle, Wesley A. Taylor, of Bonnie Brae street.

The speaker pictured the change that has taken place in relation to the handling of the car supply of the United States.

"We all remember the situation in 1920," he said. "Shipments everywhere were tied up. Railroad-railroad suffered paralysis, and seemed helpless. You in California suffered because cars were not available for handling your crops. Tremendous losses occurred all over the United States."

"The remedy has been applied. It has been worked out through intelligent co-operation between shippers and the transportation companies. First, the railroads got together and turned the matter over to an expert. The shippers were then organized into regional conferences, 13 such districts having been organized. Two or three times a year, the representatives of the leading shippers get together with the information at their command and with the railroads make an estimate of their needs. We have found that there never was a car shortage, not even in 1920; there was a failure of proper distribution."

Taylor said that under present arrangements shippers do not have to wait for cars anywhere.

"The success of this work," said the speaker, "points the way to the advisability of working out problems of any sort through a conference of the interested parties, basing their judgment upon information."

P. E. Rate Hearing Is Declared Off

A scheduled meeting in the office of Charles Swanner, city attorney, yesterday afternoon between a representative of the railroad commission and citizens of Santa Ana, Orange and Fullerton, failed to materialize when no one appeared to meet the representative.

The meeting was to be held to discuss complaints on service of the Pacific Electric railway in connection with the company's application for new rates, made to the railroad commission last January.

Leon Whitesel, member of the railroad commission, is handling the case, and has sent out representatives to make a survey in all of the cities affected.

Because there were no complaints lodged yesterday with E. F. McNaughton, the representative, Swanner intimated that the people of Santa Ana, Fullerton and Orange apparently were well satisfied with the company's service.

CITY MANAGER TALKS BUDGET WITH WORKERS

Determined to make the operation of the new Santa Ana budget successful, City Manager E. B. Collier and over 20 department heads and employees are today embarked on a campaign of co-operation following a meeting at the city hall last night in which various problems of the new financial arrangement were smoothed out.

Collier pointed out that each department head should be sure to stay within his budget, explaining that otherwise the plan would be no more efficient than if there were no budget. Each month all expenditures are to be reconciled with the budget and the city will know whether it is living within its income.

"I feel at present that we are in good shape," said Collier, stating that he believed the budget to be adequate for the city's needs. Expressing his desire to be of help in all departments where the budget question is concerned, he continued, "I will work with you individually and collectively for the good of Santa Ana."

The meeting was conducted with Clyde Jenken, city engineer, as chairman. Jenken discussed various matters of a detailed nature which, he said, should be carefully handled in order to assure smooth working of the budget plan.

Complaints which may come to the city from citizens should receive prompt attention, it was stated, and the city will keep a record of each incident, with a statement as to how it was settled. The records are to be on file in order that proof will be on hand that the complaints have been attended to.

Co-operation among the various departments will be of great benefit, the assembly decided. The city can save considerable expense if articles are not purchased in one department when they can be obtained from another. Employees in the field can often handle a situation not in their particular division of work, if the situation comes to their attention. Carrying out of co-operation in this manner, it was said, will save extra trips and unnecessary expense.

A suggestion that the city employees hold monthly meetings for discussing their problems met with considerable favor. Employees in many cities, it was said, get together regularly.

John, Jeffrey Bullard and Shelby Coon were Sunday visitors to the Coon home.

Mrs. G. W. Kitzmiller fell in Kress's store at Santa Ana one day last week and injured her ankle. She is recovering from the accident.

Mrs. H. F. Makosky visited her daughter, Mrs. Jonovan Nutt, at El Segundo for two days of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Baum, of Los Angeles, are occupying their handsome new beach home on Collins avenue near the south bay front. They will stay for two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones and family, of Yorba Linda, occupied the Dan Miller cottage on Opal avenue over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Baker and family and a party of friends are staying in the Scott dwelling on Opal avenue a week. Among the guests are Mr. and Mrs. U. C. Salmon, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Neal and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wyatt, all of Los Angeles.

On Friday J. A. Beck towed a party of about 100 children, members of the Balboa Island Yacht club and their friends, to the Parkinson tract in the upper bay, where a barbecue lunch was served on the sands. The Yacht club's boathouse was used to convey the party to the picnic. After the barbecue, the party was taken to a point opposite Mr. Beck's island, where a treasure hunt was enjoyed by children and the grown-ups of the party alike.

Mrs. P. E. McGee, of Hollywood, is spending the remainder of the summer at Park and Topaz avenues.

HEALTH OFFICE TO CHECK ALL DRINK PLACES

Sanitary regulations relating to the sterilization of all drinking utensils used in public places will be enforced to the letter by the Orange county health department. It was announced today by Dr. V. G. Presson, county health officer. In this connection, it was intimated that complaints have been received as to the methods employed at certain places in cleaning glasses. Sanitary inspectors connected with the county health department today were given instructions to check up on drinking places, particularly those of a temporary character catering to motor travel trade.

According to the state regulations, which must be enforced by county and city health officers, operators of drinking places have the choice of three methods in complying with the law, as follows: (1) Individual paper receptacles; (2) sterilization by steam in an apparatus acceptable to the state department of public health; (3) immersion for fully three minutes in boiling water to which soap flakes, chips or powder has been added. (To avoid unnecessary breakage it is advised that glasses be placed in cold water and then the container heated until the water boils.)

NEW FALL HAT MAY BE OLDER THAN IT SEEMS

Look to your laurels, you feminine possessors of the latest in Parisian fall hats, and while looking, closely inspect the new fall hat. For today, milliners in Santa Ana confessed to holding a hat from one season to the next. They retouch them with a bit of new ribbon or a bright flower, twist the brim a little and knock in the crown, before again putting the hat on display to tempt the unsuspecting public.

The public rises to the occasion and purchases the hats. Mrs. Jones buys a cute little felt which she may have thrown aside in disgust the preceding year and wears it home, proudly telling the neighbors that it is a model just sent over from France.

The milliners are anxious that the purchasers of hats should understand that such a hoax is not deliberate. They merely fail to state just when the hat came from Paris and if it gives satisfaction, there is no reason for spoiling it by telling what year the model was originally created, especially since the trimming or the brim is new.

But even the hats that are especially re-dressed for sale sometimes fail to find a suitable head, hat saleswomen say. It is these hats which usually are put on sale at 98 cents each. In this manner many hats originally priced from $15 to $25 are disposed of.

But what about those who are misfits in the scheme of millinery even then? It seems that when neither Judy O'Grady nor the colonel's lady will wear a bonnet it is doomed, its destiny never having been completed. But 'tis not so for the remaining headgear is sent to the Salvation Army or other charitable institutions where necessity knows no choice. Here it is impossible to find a hat so peculiar but what some one is willing to wear it. So finally all hats find an owner somewhere.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: At the Pole

By Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge. Copyright, 1923-26

On April 6, 1909, Peary fixed his position at 89 degrees, 57 minutes North Latitude. The dream of reaching the Pole was about to come true. With Henson he went forward with only one sledge and a double team of dogs. After ten miles a light broke through the gray sky. Peary took observations and found that he had walked past the Pole.

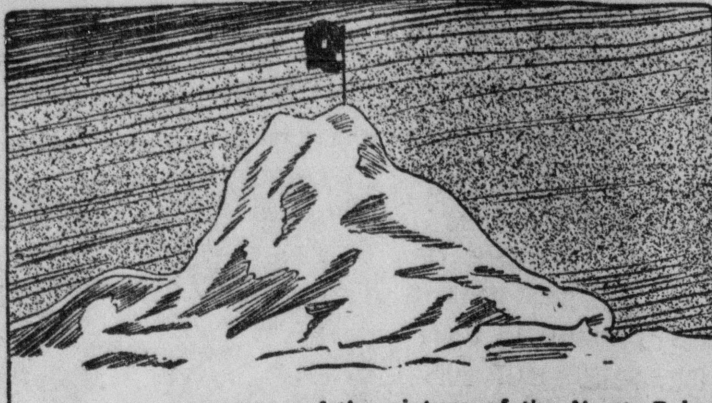

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26.

He struck eastward for eight miles, took fresh observations and found that he again had crossed the coveted goal.

Peary, taking a sounding, found he was standing over water which his measuring line of 9000 feet could not fathom.

Here is a drawing of the picture of the North Pole as Peary left it before returning to civilization. It is from Peary's collection of photographs. After an hour at the Pole, Peary started back, and from Indian Harbor, Labrador, sent out his news by wireless to the world.

Wee Clowny, high up in the tree, watched Mister Bear, and said, "Oh, gee, you don't know how relieved I am. I'm filled with aching bones. I guess that I can come down now, and cross the little stream somehow. In case the bear comes back again, be sure and have some stones."

Said Scouty, "Oh, he's gone for good. He ran just as we thought he would. I guess that you would also run, if rocks were thrown at you. We didn't want to hurt the bear, but threw the rocks to give a scare. It was a happy little hunch, and worked out perfect, too."

Then Clowny slid right down the tree. He was as graceful as could be. The others laughed to see him slide and land upon the ground. "Well, here I am," wee Clowny cried. "And now to reach the other side of this wide stream. I wonder where a big plank can be found."

A Goofy said, with solemn face, "There are no planks around this place. You'll have to find some other way. Why don't you try and swim?" "Well, I don't know," wee Clowny cried. "I would take me long to reach that side, and anyway, I'm rather tired and just don't feel in trim."

And so the whole bunch looked around, in hope that something might be found to help poor Clowny join the bunch, but nothing was in sight. Then Carpy yelled, in cheerful tone "Why there's a dandy, great big stone, right in the middle of the stream. That ought to help just right."

"Just jump on it, and have no fear. Then, one more jump and you'll be here. I'm sure that is a statement that I will not have to prove." So Clowny promptly took a jump and landed on the rock ketchump. And then a queer thing happened, 'cause the rock began to move.

(The surprise is solved in the next story.)

SHAPING THE NAILS

If you are awkward about manicuring, there are all sorts of tricks and dodges you can learn which make the nails look as though some expert had gone carefully over them. But nothing can disguise the shape of the nails. You must learn to shape them well.

It's not so hard. Nor does it take much time. Once a week, file them with a long, flexible steel file, of the best quality you can buy. I have paid 50c for fairly good ones, but think it wise to go as high as $1 for better quality. A good steel file will last you a life time, a poor one will wear dull, tear the nails, or else make filing such a business that you will hate it—and do it badly. A good file cuts quickly and cleanly, and by making the mechanics of the job easy, helps you shape the nails nicely.

Every other day, go over the nails again with the fine side of an emery board. This gives them a fresh edge, makes them look newly manicured. Also you can keep the two corners, where the nail grows out of the flesh, looking clean and neat. If these are messy, the nails look messy, the whole hand looks neglected. Run the emery board down into these little corners, and in half a minute, the shape of the nails is improved. The nails seem to grow faster at these edges than in the center. And that's all the attention you need pay them, as far as shaping them goes.

Always begin by filing down these corners, so the nail seems to set well back into the finger. If you file so the pressure is mostly towards these corners, then the nails shape themselves easily for you. Let the nails come to a point, a rounded sort of point, not too sharp, not too flat. Sharpness gives the fingers a claw-like look which is not becoming, too flat

This must be carefully done... make them look pudgy. A little practice will make you perfect.

Girls Need Charm To Get Husbands

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Albert Carr writes an article in a popular magazine, entitled "Doing Right by Our Nell."

He criticizes our modern method of education, or rather the way we handle our girls in school. We make them study all the things the boys study, he asserts, and encourage them in boys' sports, when all the time they should be having a course in "charm."

He states in many complicated paragraphs that the most attractive and charming girl gets the best man for a husband. At least it amounts to that. And he believes in every girl having her chance. What chance is she going to have against her luckier sisters, unless someone takes her in hand and tells her how to dress, behave, walk, and do all the things that nowadays make the woman a fit candidate for the marriage market? It matters not so much if she can bake a cherry-pie as whether or not she knows the kind of powder and lip-stick that match her complexion.

The author of this interesting article shouldn't be right but he is. I've been to a good many weddings and I'm willing to wager that although the bridesmaids may have been good pie bakers, the bride usually wasn't, but instead, someone had taught her to be charming—even though she were not to the manner born.

There is only one thing I take exception to. Why wish the job on the schools? The author suggests that the work to be perfect, must begin at six. That looks as though the public schools are looked to, to become the missionaries in this new course in feminism. Were it a separate course in a university that he suggests the difficulty would be removed at once. "Belles made while you wait," so to speak.

I have always had great admiration for the teacher who sent Johnny home from school to be washed. Johnny soon returned, with a note bearing the memorable words: "I send Johnny to school to be learnt, not smelt. He ain't no rose." An old story but involving the principle of pedagogy with which we have not finished. At least as it involves Johnny's sister.

Shouldn't charm, like charity, begin at home? Isn't it a mother's job to teach Nellie to be a lady?

THE WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Henry Carlton of Chicago, business man, and perhaps tired, too, told his wife he was going to Pittsburgh on business. When he came home his wife found a roll of films in his pocket. She had them developed. They depicted husband Henry with a lady fair having a great time at an amusement park. The pictures are Exhibit A in Mrs. Carlton's divorce suit.

Many morals lurk here. One might interpret the anecdote as the folly of being so egotistic that pictures must be taken, also of the wifely folly of investigating husband's coat pockets, and, perhaps, too, the folly of the impetuosity of wives who think that one day at an amusement park must undo years of fidelity.

Merry Widows
Once upon a time, the widow, the merry, merry widow, was considered a formidable rival by the unmarried girl, so far as men were concerned. But fingers, good, old-fashioned, reliable fingers, prove that the widow is losing her power and that many more men are choosing inexperienced maidens for brides.

Perhaps it is not the waning of the widow's charms so much as the more formidable appearance of the widow's offspring now that butter costs 60 cents a pound and shoes $10 a pair, to say nothing of the movies and pop and ice cream cones which the widow's offspring would expect as a matter of course.

A BIRD AND A BAD DAY

Nothing to write about; nothing to say. And a syndicate shouting for copy today. "Get busy," they wire. "You are overdue now. We must have your verses tomorrow somehow." So I sit at my desk and twiddle my thumbs. But the morning departs and a thought never comes.

Just out of my window a bird on a tree is singing a glorious lyric for me. It may be an old tune, it may be a new. But I wonder the while I am hearing him through. Is that brave little fellow full of pleased with his lot? Does he, too, have to sing when he'd much rather not?

So sweet is his music, so liquid each note. Which comes with delight from his marvelous throat. I wonder at times if he'd rather keep still. Than capture my ear with a rapturous trill? Can a bird ever know such a soul-racking thing As an order for song and have nothing to sing?

Oh! brave little fellow, I'll struggle somehow To get out that copy for Adams right now. You were fashioned for singing, and though it may irk, You sing with a brave heart because it's your work. My thanks for this lesson your courage has taught, And also my thanks for suggesting this thought.

A WEB of cords that end in numbered holes. A hand poised ready to answer signals which flash from tiny lamps. A mind, alert for prompt and accurate performance of a vital service. A devotion to duty inspired by a sense of the public's reliance on that service.

Every section of a telephone switchboard typifies the co-ordination of human effort and mechanism that makes possible America's far-reaching telephone service. Its cords link for instant speech those who are separated by a continent. Its guardian operator is one of an army of telephone men and women vigilant to meet a nation's need for communications.

In plant and personnel, the Bell System is in effect a vast switchboard serving a nation that has been transformed into a neighborhood through telephone growth and development.

PEST CONTROL COST HERE IS MILLION YEAR

BY CHARLES SPOTTS

Many people have wondered just what the cost of fumigating and spraying orchards amounts to and because of lack of information they greatly underestimate the amount of work done and the cost of this work to the growers in order to protect fruit from the attacks of scale and insects. In order to show the magnitude of the industry in Orange county, figures, which have been given out by Anson A. Brock, Orange county horticultural commissioner, show that nearly a million dollars a year are spent by ranchers of the county on fumigation and spraying.

The actual cost of treating citrus and walnut groves of this county amounted to $868,542.15 last year. This sum is divided into three divisions, fumigating, spraying and dusting. The amount of money used in fumigating was the largest, $610,058.14. The amount on spraying totaled $245,143.09 and dusting walnut trees cost $13,340.92. These sums represent the actual cost of the work to the rancher.

According to records of the county, 32 fumigating operators' licenses have been issued to Orange county firms and 50 spraying licenses have been issued. These all are issued through the state horticultural commissioner's office in Sacramento and are on record in the county office in Santa Ana. Under these licenses 126 foremen are employed in fumigating and 62 foremen in the spraying outfits. Each foreman has under him from three to six men, making in all about a thousand men who are employed in the pest control business. Adding to this the many ranchers, who do their own work and those who dust the walnut orchards, Brock estimates that many more than a thousand men are employed in this business in the county.

The number of trees fumigated and sprayed total 2,559,196, of which 2,041,196 were fumigated and 518,000 were sprayed. The average cost per tree was .2938 of a cent for fumigation and .0009 of a cent for spraying. Six thousand eight hundred and sixty tents were used by the various companies in their fumigation work.

The amount of liquid gas used in fumigation was 588,399 pounds; 37,037 pounds of dust were used. In spraying 21 different varieties of gas was used.

There were 1811 1-2 acre treated for insects in the walnut orchards of the county. These were dusted for worm and aphid. The average cost per acre for dusting the walnut trees for aphid was $3.39, while the cost of dusting for both aphid and worms was $12.28 per acre.

Brock estimates that this year more fumigation and pest control will be done than last year because many of the trees were not reached last year. The work was not completed soon enough last year and many of the orchards did not receive the full benefit of the fumigation. Brock stated that there were 15 more fumigating outfits engaged in fumigation and spraying this year than there were last year.

SENATOR DEPLORES PLIGHT OF FARMER

PADUCAH, Ky., Aug. 31.—Few have painted a grayer picture of the farmer's lot than has U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky.

Farmers with net incomes less than half those of other workers, farm property declining tremendously and taxes going up, inequality in costs of products and lack of federal aid are some of the ailments Barkley finds in his diagnosis of agriculture. The cure, to him, is the kind of government aid that President Coolidge vetoed in the last session of congress.

"In the last six years," Barkley declares, "the farmer has seen the value of his property decline more than $17,000,000,000. He has seen the value of his products decline in the same period more than $13,000,000,000, making an aggregate loss to agriculture in six years of more than $30,000,000,000.

"This is greater than the total value of all the railroads in the United States.

"He has seen his net income decline until last year it was less than $700 compared with an average of more than $1500 for all other walks of life. He has seen his indebtedness increase until last year it amounted to more than $12,000,000,000.

"He has seen his agricultural population decline until it is now scarcely more than one-third of our total population.

"During the same period the farmer has been compelled to see the cost of production to him more than double. And during this same six years the farmers have seen their taxes increased from $850,000,000 to $900,000,000 a year."

Ellis To Study Farm Conditions On Europe Trip

R. N. Ellis, assistant farm advisor in Orange county, leaves next Saturday for Europe, where he will attend the American Legion convention at Paris. Ellis is past commander of the El Centro Legion and will represent that group at the convention.

While on the continent, Ellis will make a tour embracing many important agricultural districts. In France he will make a special study of truck crop growing for the large metropolises. He expects to visit the horticultural areas growing walnuts, citrus and grapes. Agriculture in the British Isles will also come under his observation, as he plans to visit England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland. He will visit one of the oldest agricultural experiment stations in the world at Rothamsted in Harpenden, England, where truck crop experimentation has been carried on very intensively during the past century.

Ellis will be away about two months.

PROGRAM FOR WALNUT MEET IS ARRANGED

The complete program for the walnut growers field day to be held at Satcoy, Ventura county, Saturday, September 3, has just been issued by the walnut growers department of the farm bureau. The lineup for this program indicates an interesting and instructive day for the walnut growers of California. Plans are being made for a large gathering. A number of Orange county growers have indicated their intention of going, according to Farm Advisor H. G. Wahlberg. The program is as follows:

10:00 a. m. welcome—J. M. Sharp, president, Satcoy Walnut Growers association and pioneer walnut grower of Ventura county.

10:05 a. m. N. T. Webber, secretary, California Walnut Growers association, "Walnut Outlook for 1927."

10:20 a. m. W. E. Hooper, walnut extension specialist, University of California, "Latest Developments in Walnut Harvesting and Curing Methods."

10:50 a. m. Stanley Flanders, entomologist, Satcoy Walnut Growers association, "Control of the Walnut Coddling Moth."

11:15 a. m. M. S. Achenbach, advertising manager, H. K. McCann company, San Francisco, "Importance of Advertising Walnuts."

Noon—Basket lunch, coffee, sugar, cream and fruit furnished by the farm bureau; bring your own cups and spoons.

Examination of the walnut packing house with its new addition. Examination of walnut insectary owned and operated by the Satcoy Walnut Growers association.

1:30 p. m. Tour in buses through walnut orchards, illustrating young and old bearing groves, effects of thinning, soil study and production records. Farm Advisor Vincent F. Blanchard and walnut extension specialist W. E. Hooper in charge of tour. In order to avoid the difficulties always encountered in handling a large number of autos on such a tour, provision has been made to take everyone in buses. This will reduce the number of autos and will keep the group together better.

3:45 p. m. Arrive at Satcoy walnut house.

Mechanical Fork Is On Exhibition

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 31.—A mechanical pitchfork will be one of the labor saving machines shown at the state fair, September 3-10. This is not the only new development in farm machinery that has taken place in the last year to be shown at the fair.

In tractors, considerable progress has been made in bettering the product along the lines of fighting wear by constant improvement in heat treatment of steels and the development of wear-resistant materials. Implements have also been devised that can be pulled by a tractor and operated by a power take-off from the tractor, avoiding the necessity of auxiliary power plants.

Not only will $300,000 in tractors, implements, road machinery, dairy and having equipment, and every sort of farm tool be shown at this year's fair, but the manufacturers are sending technical staffs and executives to the state fair to demonstrate the tools and machinery under working conditions, and to discuss the problems of the industry with the users of the equipment.

Health Springs Opened By Quake

SEBASTOPOL, Russia, Aug. 31.—An earthquake which shook the Crimean peninsula late in June opened up many new springs of highly medicinal waters, according to Soviet state geologists, who left immediately to test the new waters and determine their powers. Southern Russia is an earthquake belt of peculiar geological formation, and springs of sulphur water, bubbling drinking waters and other health-giving minerals exist in large quantities here.

WALNUT SEASON OPENS HERE SOON

This will be a familiar sight in Orange county soon. It is an interior view of a walnut grower's cooperative warehouse where nuts are sorted, marked and packed for sale as a unit with greater returns to the individual grower. Santa Ana boasts one of the largest co-operative walnut houses in the state. The inset shows Charles W. Holman, secretary of the American Institute of Co-operation.

FOREST RECEIPTS IN STATE OF CALIFORNIA TOTAL HUGE AMOUNT DURING FISCAL YEAR

Sales of timber, permits for grazing, and other uses of the national forests brought a total of $5,166,609.39 into the coffers of the federal government during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1927, it is announced by the forest service, United States department of agriculture.

The total receipts from the national forests for the last fiscal year were an increase of $10,948.37 over the amount received in the preceding fiscal year, and exceeded any previous year except 1923 and 1924, when the receipts were $5,335,818.13, and $5,251,903.11, respectively.

The national forests of districts six, which includes the states of Oregon and Washington, showed the largest receipts of any of the districts, taking in $1,309,173.16. This was a gain of $195,017.72 over the receipts for that district in the preceding fiscal year. District five, comprising the state of California, was second in total receipts, taking in $1,162,581.38, which, however, was a decrease of $113,664.13 compared with the preceding year. Receipts of the other districts were as follows:

District two, comprising the states of Colorado, Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, $732,387.31, a decline of $21,336.90 from the preceding year; district four, comprising Utah, Nevada and Southern Idaho, $589,624.26, a decrease of $200,870.29; district three, comprising Arizona and New Mexico, $379,336.89, a gain of $176,764.19 over the preceding fiscal year; district seven, comprising all the Central, Southern and Eastern states, $263,468.07, a gain of $5,368.35; and district eight, comprising the Territory of Alaska, $157,725.87, an increase of $54,378.29.

The material increase in timber sale receipts in the Alaska district last year was brought about largely by deposits made in connection with the large pulp timber sales recently consummated on the Tongass national forest, by which some 1,670,000 cubic feet of pulp wood value, made available for cutting, open up the way for a permanent newspaper industry in Alaska. The large decrease in district one was due mainly to falling off of timber on account of poor market conditions. In the southwestern district, the grazing receipts for the fiscal year 1927 were $195,873.06, and for 1926, $42,872.22. For the earlier year, the low figure was due principally to the fact that grazing fees in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah were remitted for that year.

The total national forest receipts last year came from the following sources: timber sales, $3,206,332.82; timber settlements, $21,563.93; timber trespass, $5,673.02; turpentine sales, $18,872.73; grazing fees (cattle and horses) $874,613.82; grazing (sheep and goats) $847,046.54; grazing trespass, $9,265.75; special use, $379,611.63; occupancy, $98,749.34; fire trespass, $5,600.84; property trespass, $8,600.84.

In all sales of national forest timber the cutting is done under the supervision of forest officers in such a way that the future timber production of the area will not be impaired. Grazing permits on national forests likewise are issued with a due regard to the permanent maintenance of the forage resources.

Under the federal law, 25 per cent of all the gross receipts of the national forests is turned over to the states and counties in which the place forests are located, to take the place of taxes which might be collected if the lands were in private ownership, government lands being exempt from taxation. These funds are used for the improvement and maintenance of schools and the construction of roads in the local communities.

A greater grape crop is estimated for this country by the department of agriculture. The season's total crop will be about 2,500,000 tons, which is 8 per cent above last year's and 20 per cent above the average of the last five years.

Tobacco and hay show considerable improvement, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports. In fact, July saw the largest hay crop ever harvested in the United States. Tobacco production had an increase of nearly 40,000,000 pounds.

NEW RECORD SET
British Columbia has set a new record in farm produce. Last year's produce of this province alone amounted to more than $71,000,000 in value, a gain of more than $6,000,000 over the previous year.

"SWAT THE ROOSTER"
A. C. Hoffman of Pawnee county, Kas., reports that local poultry raisers are inaugurating a "Swat the Rooster" week to insure against fertile eggs.

CHAMPION COW
"Silver Rainwood Rocha," champion Holstein cow, owned by James G. Scales of Summit county, Ohio, produced more than 10,000 quarts and nearly 900 pounds of butter during the past year.

CO-OPERATION FOUND HELP TO MANY GROWERS

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Spread of the co-operative movement in the United States promises to regain for the American farmer his old position of independence and respect.

This is the confident hope of delegates from practically every state in the union and a number of foreign countries who attended the four-week summer session of the American Institute of Co-operation here.

Charles W. Holman of Washington, secretary of the organization and an authority on the co-operative movement, says that competitive bargaining as practiced by more than 12,000 co-operatives now successfully functioning in this country is developing a national consciousness among farmers.

"But he is growing less suspicious," he says, "the farmer has been timid and suspicious in the face of tremendous industrialism and the rapid growth of transportation which removed his market from the hamlet to the metropolis."

Learns From Industry
"He is losing his feeling of futility," he says, "the farmer has been timid and suspicious in the face of tremendous industrialism and the rapid growth of transportation which removed his market from the hamlet to the metropolis."

By this means western fruit growers informed other co-operatives that they had been saving freight charges by mixing carload lots of different produce.

Mixed shipments, say of two different kinds of fruit, utilized the car space to great advantage and made shipment to greater distances possible at less cost than shipments of single commodities, they said.

The sessions were composed of a unique sprinkling of farmers, executives and college professors. Many of the latter came to get material which they will teach next year. But professors had the status of students and the farmers were their teachers.

One of the biggest problems which the gathering had to confront was the net loss of 500,000 farmers to the country yearly.

How to Stop Migration
It is estimated that 2,000,000 farmers drift between farm and city each year. Of this number 500,000 stay away for good, constituting an irreparable loss to the industry.

"Stabilization of agriculture through co-operative practices is the only means of checking this loss," Holman says. "When the farmer is able to get a fair return for his product and labor he will find it profitable to farm and remain where he is."

"At the present time the dairy industry is probably the best organized, co-operatively. Wheat is a bit backward, cotton and tobacco are moving fast and wool is now in process of organization."

During 1925 the co-operatives in this country did a two and one-half billion dollar business as compared with a one and one-half billion turnover in 1915. The movement got its first foothold in the United States in 1899 and today is made up principally of two types—the federated type operating about a co-operative group and the centralized type in which the sales contract goes to the individual on a pooling basis share and share alike.

More than 2,000,000 farmers now belong to co-operatives, which number is practically double what it was two years ago.

PERSIMMON TO BE SUBJECT AT FIELD MEETING

The fourth annual field day and institute for the persimmon growers of Southern California will be held at La Habra September 23, according to Ray Frantz, president of the La Habra farm center. About 150 growers are expected to convene from all parts of Southern California and possibly a few from the northern part of the state.

The program committee, headed by H. E. Wahlberg, farm advisor in Orange county, and assisted by J. M. Alcorn, Fullerton; S. A. Meyers, La Habra; J. C. Johnston, Los Angeles; and W. R. Elliott, of El Monte, is planning a timely program embracing the outstanding problems of the industry. A progress report on the marketing organization will be given by J. M. Alcorn, president of the newly formed Southern California Persimmon Growers association. Wells A. Sherman, recently appointed state market director has been invited to speak.

Prof. E. L. Overholser, university farm, who has done considerable experimental work on storage of persimmons, will make a report to the growers. The question of heavy dropping of fruit will be open for general discussion.

In the afternoon a field trip will be taken, visiting representative persimmon plantings in northern Orange county.

SEED VERIFICATION SERVICE IS IN USE

The inauguration of a seed verification service, effective September 1, for verifying the origin and identity of field seeds in commerce, is announced by the bureau of agricultural economics, of the United States department of agriculture.

Buyers of alfalfa, red clover and other seeds, the origin of which is of primary importance, will soon be able to purchase seeds with a verified-origin seed certificate, issued under authority of the department of agriculture.

The proposed service is the outgrowth of recommendations made at seed marketing conferences held in June and November, 1926, in Chicago, to devise and suggest means by which verification of origin may be accomplished. The tentative plan for a seed verification service, developed at those conferences, was later approved by the International Crop Improvement association and Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' association, with the recommendation that the details be worked out by the department.

Under the proposed plan, seedsmen who comply with the regulations and provisions of the department governing the service, may issue United States verified-origin seed certificates on seeds which have been previously verified as to origin by an authorized inspector.

Electricity Is Used In Plowing

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Drs. B. A. Keen and W. B. Haines of the Rothamsted experiment station have perfected a device that makes plowing easier.

By equipping a plow with a small generator, suspending a cutting coulter rigidly in front of the plowshare to create a positive pole and using the soil as a conductor of electricity, an electric current can be started between the coulter and the plowshare which is made the negative pole.

The current forms a film of moisture before the plow, which moistens the soil enough to make it slide over the plowshare easily.

Women Are Given Blame For Wars

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Women thus far have utterly failed as world peace makers and to the contrary have been responsible for many of the world's great wars, says the Woman's Home Companion for September in an article headed "Women as War Makers."

"Most of the real work for permanent peace is still being done by men," continues the article, "and the movements should have the strongest support and inspiring leadership from the mothers of the nation. The statement that women have hitherto failed as peacemakers should be repeated again and again."

"There is bitter truth in the recent statement of the great leader of women, Carrie Chapman Catt, that women have caused more irritation among nations than any other influence which has resulted in history's great wars. Mrs. Catt attributes this to the tendency of women throughout the world to repeat in exaggerated form statements of men in regard to matters of race hatred and other phases of foreign policy which might make two countries spring at each other's throat."

EGG COST SURVEY
Oregon is making a survey of the cost of producing commercial eggs and of factors influencing this cost. The object is to determine what factors influence cost and how these can be controlled to reduce it.

Walnut Harvest Methods Are To Be Told In Field

Two field meetings for walnut growers have been scheduled for Wednesday, September 7 to discuss better harvesting methods. A close check on the promptness of picking up walnuts from the ground has clearly shown that mould and ambers are materially reduced by reducing the time the nuts are on the ground.

In view of the large crop this year, the packing houses will grade very close as to quality. A thorough discussion of better harvesting methods will be presented by the agricultural extension service. The first meeting will be held at 10 a. m. at the Harry Lewis' grove on East Fourth street, Santa Ana.

The second at 2 p. m. at the Kattella school, corner Kattella Road and Nursery (West) streets, two miles Southwest of Anaheim.

SCIENCE SEEN KEY TO BETTER RURAL LIVING

"Has rural life had its day; or is a new day coming; is the farmer a disappearing factor in American economics, American social life, American religious life, American politics; or is the farmer about to take a step up in American life, and fill a role—a fitting new role, which corresponds with the noble pioneer role he has played in the first 200 years of American national life?"

Dr. C. J. Galpin, of the department of agriculture, asked this question at the recent tenth annual conference of the American Country Life association, and answered it optimistically, finding in science the key to improvement in social and spiritual developments as well as to improvement in material production.

Prefacing his address with a survey of 200 years of rural history, Dr. Galpin analyzed census returns to show that for 200 years the rural population increased absolutely in numbers although it declined relatively in the total population. The year 1910 marked a decisive change in these relationships, bringing to a close one block of rural life history and opening "a period of transition and crisis" in which "the last 10-year span, 1917-1927, stands forth shining with the spotlight upon it."

"This tiny span," Dr. Galpin continued, "finds itself in a different period—a period with loss in numbers and bewilderment on the one hand, and a sense of creative ability on the other; in fact, a period of crisis."

The spread of the science of agriculture and the principles of homemaking to the American farmer and the farm woman since 1910 has reached the rank and file until Secretary Jardine could say last March, "It is no exaggeration that through the research accomplishments of recent years the average farmer knows more of the science on which his industry rests, and brings it into more constant application, than the scientist knew 50 years ago."

The farmer's response to science as applied to the economics of his occupation appears as a herald of science applied to all his human relationships. "This revolution in the rural mind will work its way into rural civilization," Science will "characterize the second period of the nation's rural life and stand forth as the genius of its culture."

As evidences of the trend in this direction, Dr. Galpin cites such examples as farmers' hospitals, rural libraries, modern home community clubhouses, athletic fields, and swimming pools, consolidated schools, camping grounds, rural churches of distinction, and modernized farmers' towns where merchandizing has been put upon a scientific basis of service and helpful advertising. These are logical outgrowths of agricultural science.

In higher education, too, the trend appears. From 1917 to 1927 colleges and university students studying rural sociology increased from perhaps 2000 to an estimated 20,000, and "the idea, that controllable facts make rural society what it is, is being injected into farm life as an adjunct to the natural operation of science working in agricultural practice."

Breaks His Leg Laughs About It

BALLS FERRY, Calif., Aug. 31.—Can you imagine a man laughing over a broken leg?

Ernest Giles, Shasta pioneer, did the other day when he was thrown from a harrow and run over by the discs.

"Just a mere trifle," he giggled. "Gentlemen! fix it in a jiffy." And he proceeded to unstrap the broken fragment of his wooden leg.

TIME TO STOP
LONDON, Aug. 31.—Two wedding receptions were being held in a fashionable hotel here at the same hour. Since the guests kept getting into the wrong reception, the two affairs were merged. A late guest, refusing a glass of champagne, said: "I know when I've had enough; I've seen two brides already."

TOUGH ON TREES
More than 200,000 known kinds of insects attack trees. In this country alone it is estimated, the loss from caterpillars, beetles, borers and other insects amounts to $100,000,000.

BEAN FARMERS PLAN TO KEEP COST ACCOUNTS

If the bean growers of Orange county are spending too much for labor, irrigation, or any other item which enters into the cost of producing their crop, they are going to find it out. The farmers are becoming curious about their expenses and, with the assistance of the Orange County Farm bureau, are working out a system whereby an accurate check can be made on every item.

Following a year's operation of the same system among orange growers, which is said to have resulted in benefit to them, a number of the bean producers are wondering if the use of similar labor sheets will not give them a hint on lowering the cost of turning out beans.

The farmers expect to keep close records of their labor, tractor or horse expense, as well as the miscellaneous items which enter in. The sheets on which they are kept will be tabulated at the farm bureau and summaries sent to each grower. He will be able to determine whether he is spending more or less than the average grower on any given item. If he discovers that a certain outlay is too large, he will have a definite point of attack in attempting to reduce his expenses, for the labor sheets will tell him just how he stands in relation to other growers. By exchanging ideas with them, he should be able to discover how to reduce his own costs.

Besides labor and tractor records, an inventory of machinery and equipment, taxes, water, and the interest on the farmer's investment are considered in calculating how much per bean is expended in operating the farm.

If a grower finds that he is not making good returns on his investment, he will find out why. If a change in method will not reduce his costs and bring up his profits, he perhaps will shift to a more profitable crop.

Fifteen farmers, controlling 750 acres of bean land have arranged to cooperate in the cost checking scheme.

TEA IMPORTS DROP 1 MILLION POUNDS

Nearly one million pounds less tea was imported during the fiscal year than during the preceding year according to the report of the tea control laboratory of the food, drug and insecticide administration, United States department of agriculture.

The text of the report follows: "As accompanying statistical tea report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, shows that 97,595,579 pounds of tea were examined at all of the tea examining stations. Of this amount, 100,703 pounds or one-tenth of one per cent was rejected for quality, there being no objections for purity. Out of the total amount rejected by the examiners, only four appeals, totaling 9718 pounds were taken to the board of tea appeals. Of these four rejections, three, amounting to 5117 pounds were finally rejected by the board and one protest, amounting to 4700 pounds was finally admitted as being up to the government standard."

"As compared with last year, nearly 1,000,000 pounds less tea was imported, and while the percentage of rejections during the past fiscal year was much less than during the preceding year, this was accounted for by the fact that during the preceding fiscal year many of the rejections were caused by the tea being damaged in transit. This condition did not obtain to such an extent during the past season.

Fire Makes Tree Easy Bug Victim

Fire and insects are often close allies in the work of destroying trees in the forests, says the California District, U. S. forest service.

A recent study of an area badly infested with the western pine beetle, according to forest officers, revealed that nearly four times as many trees were killed by the depredations of the insect in a burned-over tract as were killed in the adjacent unburned forest in the last two years.

The study was made by a bureau of entomology crew in the western part of the Modoc national forest adjacent to patented lands in northern California. Insects are causing heavy losses in this region.

The crew made a strip survey 10 chains in width and two miles long through the tract. It was found that the average yearly loss for 1925 and 1926 was 300 trees killed by insects per section in the unburned area, while on the burned area an average of 1200 or nearly four times as many were killed by insects per section on the area which had been burned over by the 1924 fire.

NEW ARCADES AT H. S. MEET WITH APPROVAL

Members of the Santa Ana City Federation of Parent-Teacher association, particularly mothers of girl students attending the high school, are expressing themselves as well satisfied with the new arcades now under construction at the Santa Ana high school plant. The arcades, it was brought out, are not only a measure designed to improve health conditions among the girl students by furnishing protection in inclement weather, but they have decidedly an added feature of beauty in the grouping of the buildings, the P. T. A. declare.

Active steps to secure the construction of the arcades began three years ago during the presidency of Mrs. J. M. Burlew of the High School P. T. A. and followed up by definite action under the presidency of Mrs. Mary B. Robertson.

The expressions of the Parent Teacher members, it was pointed out, will serve to offset to some extent criticism levelled against the board of education to the effect that too much money, close to $12,000, was appropriated for the construction of the arcades.

NEWS FROM ORANGE COUNTY TOWNS

WORK AMONG MEXICANS IS CLUB SUBJECT

FULLERTON, Aug. 31.—Americanization work in northern Orange county was told to members of the Fullerton Lions club yesterday noon at McFarland's cafe by Miss Arletta Klahn and Miss Drusilla Mackey, instructors in Americanization work in the Mexican settlements here.

The problems encountered in the work and the results of the constructive work were the main themes upon which the two women talked. Both told of the hopes that they had for the future in their activities.

Mr. Dolores Fernandez and Victor Flores spoke briefly on the incentive to improve themselves, which had come through the Americanization work. Mr. Flores intends to continue his high school course, which was interrupted a few years ago, and plans to take up the study of medicine following the completion of the high school course. An appeal was made to the club to act as "big brother" to him in aiding him to secure work to finance his education was made by Miss Mackey.

Fred Schlendering, proprietor of a dry goods store in Fullerton, spoke briefly on his experiences with Mexican employees in his store, declaring that he was entirely satisfied with their work and their ability. He praised the work that Miss Mackey and Miss Klahn are doing in the Americanization program among the Mexicans.

S. S. Smith, president of the Lions club, was greeted with cheers by the members on his return to the luncheon after having been absent for the past month on account of an operation, performed in Los Angeles. Expression of appreciation he felt for interest taken in him by members during his convalescence was expressed by Smith.

ANAHEIM, Aug. 31.—When school bells ring again for Anaheim children, September 12, more than 2000 pupils are expected to answer the call, according to announcements today by Principal J. A. Claves of the Anaheim union high school, and Superintendent Melbourne A. Gauer of the Anaheim grammar school system.

Important changes and improvements have been under way during the summer months in many of the school buildings and all are now practically ready for the opening of the new term. The new classes, when they enter upon their new term's work, will find the educational facilities of Anaheim greatly improved.

Registration at the high school, completed as far as possible at the close of last term, is expected to approach the 650 mark, which will be a distinct gain over last year's opening registration. The grammar schools of the city opened last year with an initial enrollment of approximately 1400 pupils and this term's registration is expected to be about the same Superintendent Gauer reported.

Teaching staffs are to remain unchanged as far as the number of instructors is concerned, 40 teachers having been hired by the high school and 66 by the grammar schools for the coming term.

FULLERTON IMPROVEMENTS WILL COST GAS COMPANY IN NEIGHBORHOOD OF $100,000

FULLERTON, Aug. 31.—Around $100,000 will be spent in Fullerton by the Southern Counties Gas company during the next 12 months in improvements, it was declared by C. E. Rutledge, district manager for the company, at an adjourned meeting of the Fullerton city trustees last night.

Rutledge was present for the purpose of securing permission from the council to place gas lines in the streets throughout the city. This would require the taking up of the pavement where the lines would be placed. It was recommended that the lines be placed in the parkings instead of in the streets. A committee was appointed, composed of the street committee, the city engineer and the city attorney.

Through the action taken by the council last night, improvement work, estimated at $45,000 will soon be underway in Skyline park, a large subdivision adjoining Hillcrest park. A resolution was read authorizing the advertising for bids and setting the date as September 13 for the receiving of bids. The improvement work will consist of the laying of the sewer lines and the placing of ornamental lights on all the streets in the subdivision, consisting of Skyline drive, Virginia avenue, Frances avenue, Luanne avenue, Cannon lane and Harvard avenue.

Following his introduction by George Raymer, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, a Mr. Natzeley, representative from the Jackson's Fancy Ice Cream company, Santa Ana, stated that it was the desire of his organization to locate in Fullerton with one of its stores. He requested the councilmen to consider the proposition of the firm's leasing the corner of Whiting and Sprada avenues, the lot of which is owned by the city and the former city hall site. Natzeley stated that his firm desired a 40-foot corner and that a stucco building in the shape of an ice cream cone would be erected on that location. He informed the council that landscape work would be added to beautify the location. The matter was referred to the town committee.

Fullerton is to have another clean-up week, following the action taken by the council. A communication was received from Mrs. Mae Reeve, who was requested by the Fullerton Realty board to recommend to the council that the vacant lots be cleared. She stated that as the Armistice day celebration will be held in Fullerton, it is essential that the work be done in order that Fullerton may retain its reputation as being one of the cleanest towns in the Southland. The council authorized the city engineer to inform lot owners to clean their lots if it were necessary. This will be the second campaign this year.

In order to study the salaries and labor conditions of city employees, members of the council decided on having the city clerk prepare a report of the salaries of employees in the various departments.

A committee composed of Trustees W. J. Carmichael and Emmanuel Smith was appointed to work with the Fullerton post of the American Legion in plans for Armistice day. This action was taken following the reading of a communication from Harry Suters, commander. He asked for the permission from the board to install concessions during Armistice day and for permission to close various streets during the hours of the parade. The requests were granted.

TRAFFIC FINE POLICY TOLD BY RECORDER

FULLERTON, Aug. 31.—"Traffic violation fines are intended as a preventative measure in the city of Fullerton, rather than a source of generous revenue," H. I. Spence city recorder, declared today.

"In the past Fullerton has had a reputation for drastic treatment of speeders, but it is not the policy of the present administration to administer heavy fines and severe penalties for minor violations of traffic laws," the judge continued.

"We have two of the best traffic officers I have ever seen. They are courteous and capable and have always exercised good judgment in handling the various situations encountered in enforcing traffic laws in Fullerton."

It was pointed out that Fullerton is peculiarly situated to receive an unusually heavy flow of through traffic on the main highway from Los Angeles to San Diego and to the Mexican border. Heavy beach traffic on Sundays and holidays adds to the problems of officers patrolling the highways and provides ample opportunity for too severe enforcement and excessive penalties for revenue purposes, it was said.

"We want traffic law violators to leave this court with a good taste in their mouths," the judge said. "This does not mean that we have to let them off on promises or even permit a laxity in the handling of cases, but it does mean a campaign of enforcement with a reminder to the motorist, which will cause him to think before again violating traffic laws."

"Such reminders are usually received in the spirit in which they are assessed, and the driver leaves feeling that he has not been unfairly treated or subjected to unduly harsh penalties, while at the same time he generally admits that the 'reminder' was entirely merited and pays in that spirit."

2 STANDARD OIL WELLS COMPLETED

YORBA LINDA, Aug. 31.—The Standard Oil company, which is drilling fewer wells today than it has had under way for the past six years, nevertheless continues to be active in this district.

During the past few days the Standard has brought in two new wells and has two other wells within 1000 feet of completion, with the prospect that these will be on production in the next couple of weeks, barring unexpected difficulties.

The new Standard wells at Yorba Linda are producing a total of about 350 barrels a day. One of them is the Anaheim Union Water company No. 2, which went on production at a depth of 2326 feet, making about 155 barrels a day. The other is Vejar No. 2, completed at 2137 feet, and making about 310 barrels a day.

Besides these new completions, the Standard has its Yorba Linda Water company No. 1 down 3292 feet and the Son-Crall-Locke No. 1 well down 3118 feet. Both these wells are outposts, and probably will be drilled to the zone below 4000 feet, which appears to be more extensive than the shallower sands.

LA HABRA, Aug. 31.—Segregation of Mexican school children in the Wilson school will be made by the school board in response to requests made by 50 parents, who attended a meeting of the school board, county health officers and parents at the Wilson school last night. The segregation will be made because of the reported presence of a few cases of trachoma.

Every precaution is being taken by health authorities and school officials. It is said that it is well in hand and that it has never been known to spread while under treatment. There is no state law providing for segregation in such cases but an emergency may be declared to exist and the segregation effected.

The kindergarten class will not be taught at the Wilson school this term, it was decided. The seventh and eighth grades will be taught at the Wilson school to allow the Mexican pupils of those classes to attend.

Eye specialists, local physicians and county health officers will aid the school nurses in examining the students when school opens. Adults will be examined by physicians employed by the employers of the adults, it was said.

ORGANIZATION ADVISABLE

It is regretted that so many months have gone by without some definite step having been taken for the formation of a Santiago creek protection district. At the meeting of the city council Monday evening of this week it was stated that there is no likelihood of anything being done in time to do any protection work to ward off danger of flood damage during the coming winter. That, however, is no reason why steps should not be taken looking to organization for the year following.

It is true that plans are well along for the building of a dam across the Santiago at the fourth crossing above the county park. We are mindful of the fact that these plans have been carried along now for twenty years; it is a project that has been very slow in working out, and it may be a few years yet before it reaches a consummation.

Should a protection district be organized, extensive protection work need not be done in order to accomplish much good. A degree of control of the channel that would prevent throwing the water from one side of the creek against the other would be worth while. Authority to keep the bed free from debris in itself would be decisively worth the effort of organization.

A LOOK AT THE JURY SYSTEM

Dr. Pierre La Paule, French barrister and professor at the University of Paris, spoke the other day at the Williamstown Institute of Politics about the American jury system as contrasted with the French system of having cases tried before three judges who determine both the law and the facts. He characterized our jury system as "simply the reign of the incompetent layman." Many of the abuses prevalent in American courts he blamed on that incompetence.

"It is a paradoxical method of approach to the problem to put men incapable of weighing the relative value of material laid before them, and afterwards to establish rules of evidence forbidding that a great deal of the material available be presented to them." And yet, he admits, if laymen are to be the judges of facts, there must be all possible machinery to protect the parties before the court.

The jury system, this critic further avers, is productive of unbusinesslike methods of procedure in the administration of justice. As part of the public, the jury brings into the court room popular feelings and popular opinion, representing temporary currents of thought and feeling, as a rule, to see human values in their true light because it naturally neglects "permanent and fundamental interests for the temporary and exciting ones." Jurymen are unskilled in criticizing their own sentiments and are extremely likely to judge under pressure of subconscious elements rather than as a result of clear, conscious reasoning. Lawyers know that and play on it, increasing such elements until the trial appears to the jury only as a legal fight between two sets of lawyers.

This is trenchant criticism. Coming from an eminent foreign barrister, it deserves sober study on the part of thoughtful, intelligent Americans. Our jury system has already come under heavy criticism at home. Seeing it through the eyes of a foreigner should help to crystallize such criticism, and possibly point the way to a better system.

THE STRONGEST LIGHT

The University of Virginia at Charlottesville has a searchlight that is a searchlight. It can throw a beam of 1,385,000 candle power.

"How far that little candle throws its light! So shines a good deed in this naughty world," wrote Shakespeare. From the figures, it looks as if this light could be thrown a billion times as far. If we only had good deeds to shine like that in the realm of human conduct!

At any rate, the beam thrown by that Virginia searchlight is five times as powerful as any ever used before, and is capable of producing sunburn 2 miles away, and when directed upward is visible for 200 miles in every direction, which is assuredly shining some!

Our science makes up for our moral deficiencies, in this enlightened age. And perhaps the floods of light we are throwing upon things material will lead eventually to greater moral sweetness and light. Our schools and colleges, along with our churches, are searchlights in that realm.

A CHILD LABOR GAIN

Another state has advanced its child labor legislation another step. Louisiana has enacted a law providing an eight hour day, a 48-hour week and the requirement of physician's certificate of physical fitness for employed children under 16. It makes no educational requirement for child workers and does not prohibit employment of children in dangerous occupations. Nevertheless it marks genuine progress.

Many states are far ahead of Louisiana in caring for their children. Others still lag behind. There are very few in which there is not still room for great improvement. Until every child in the land is saved from toil that injures health, retards education, stunts moral growth, maims and cripples the body, there will be work to do in the prevention of child labor. There are certain rights to which every child is entitled.

FLOG THE FLOGGERS

There has been a new outbreak of flogging by masked men in Alabama, and the state authorities are greatly aroused. Also public sentiment, for and against—to the credit of Alabama, be it said, mostly against.

There have been prompt, fearless arrests and trials in some of these cases, and stern punishment inflicted in the way of fines and imprisonment. This was expected to have a deterrent effect. And doubtless it has, in some degree. But apparently it is not effective enough.

If there is ever justification in these times for the old Mosaic law of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, it is surely in connection with such cases of cruel punishment inflicted without trial, secretly, by anonymous private citizens usurping public authority. Flogging the floggers would be justified morally, and would probably have a salutary effect.

Time Is The Essence

San Bernardino Sun

It is an old legal axiom that time is the essence of a contract. If there be no time specified within which it must be executed there is no way to enforce its execution. In a somewhat different sense, but none the less a true one, time is the chief factor in determining the restraining effect exerted by the punishment of criminals. As that is the chief argument for punishment at all, especially for capital punishment, it follows that when the time element is weakened almost to disappearance, the effect is also attenuated to ineffectiveness. This is no new fact. The preacher in Ecclesiastes (Chapter 8, verse 11) 3,000 years ago, said: "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil."

It would be difficult to express the thought more clearly. Often comparison is made between the amount of crime in England and in the United States. We have many times as much per capita of population. It is conceded that one of the reasons for this is that Britain conserves whatever restraining value there may be in punishment by making it sure and speedy, while we lose it by uncertainty and delay.

It is but seldom that any criminal case is brought to complete conclusion by execution of the verdict of a jury within such a length of time as keeps it within the remembrance of the public. It is true that some cases are quickly disposed of, but when there is money enough to employ able counsel, the defense puts up such a fight as drags out the proceedings to such a length, that the public loses all track of it, and much, if not all, the value of conviction is lost, so far as may be concerned any restraining effect upon the conduct of other possible criminals. It is the chief failure of our criminal jurisprudence.

Always Looking Forward

Palo Alto Times

A comment at the University of California on the new buildings authorized for the Berkeley campus by the voters last year quotes the remarks made by Governor Newton Booth at the first commencement of the university, which was also a dedication of the new site, on July 16, 1873, when the graduating class consisted of twelve students, and the total enrollment of the institution was 199. Said Governor Booth at that time: "The Buildings today dedicated to their high purposes inspire us rather with hope than with pride. They are not so much the visible sign of what has been done as the pledge of what shall be done—the assurance that this institution shall keep abreast with most advanced thought, generous spirit and liberal ideas of an advancing age—that it will not be a hiding place for bats and owls, but the home of the morning greeting. All hail the hereafter."

It is interesting to recall the kindred comment that was made by Dr. David Starr Jordan regarding Stanford university at the time of its opening. He stated in effect that the buildings then dedicated were "neither hallowed nor hindered" by tradition. The forward-looking, steadily-expansive policy that has marked the administration of both the University of California and Stanford university is a fitting sequel to dedications marked by such spirit. By now, each university has a glorious record of achievement in which pride is well justified. But neither will be content to rest on past achievement. Each gives constant assurance that the hope of Governor Booth will be continually fulfilled anew by keeping "abreast with the most advanced thought, generous spirit and liberal ideas of an advancing age." Each gives assurance that the traditions by which it has by now been hallowed shall not prove a hindrance.

Judge Gary's Legacy of Advice

San Francisco Chronicle

Judge Gary was not rich enough to leave every man, woman and child a fortune. But he did leave everyone a legacy of advice that is worth money, the same sound advice for which the United States Steel Corporation paid him millions during his life. Judge Gary will urge his wife and children to decline to sign bonds or obligations of any kind surety for any other person or persons, that they refrain from anticipating their income in any respect; that they refuse to make any loans except on the basis of high-class, well-known securities, and that they invariably decline to invest in any untried or doubtful securities or property of enterprise or business.

This advice, directed to Judge Gary's family, is free to anyone who will take it. If it were generally accepted there would be no need for blue sky laws and fewer widows divested of their insurance money. It is the result of years of experience. And could one peep into that experience it might be found that the occasions upon which Judge Gary departed from his own advice were marked with broken bonds and worthless stock.

TUBERCULAR TEST URGED FOR CHILDREN UNDER 15

The Massachusetts department of health for three years has been trying to determine the relationship of underweight to disease, and to complete a ten-year program pointing toward the building up of strong citizens.

Fifty thousand children have been examined, the examination including weighing and measuring, the recording of the temperature, and careful study of the nose, throat and lungs. If suspicious signs were found, additional examinations, including the tuberculin test and X-rays of chest, were made.

It was found that city children and country children were about equal in the observations made in this investigation. Furthermore, the amount of tuberculosis in boys and girls was about the same, although many more girls at the ages of 12 to 15 were found to be underweight and to have tuberculosis in the glands near the lungs than did boys of the same age.

Malnutrition did not appear to the investigators to be so much a cause of the tuberculosis as to be associated with it, perhaps as a result of the tubercular infection.

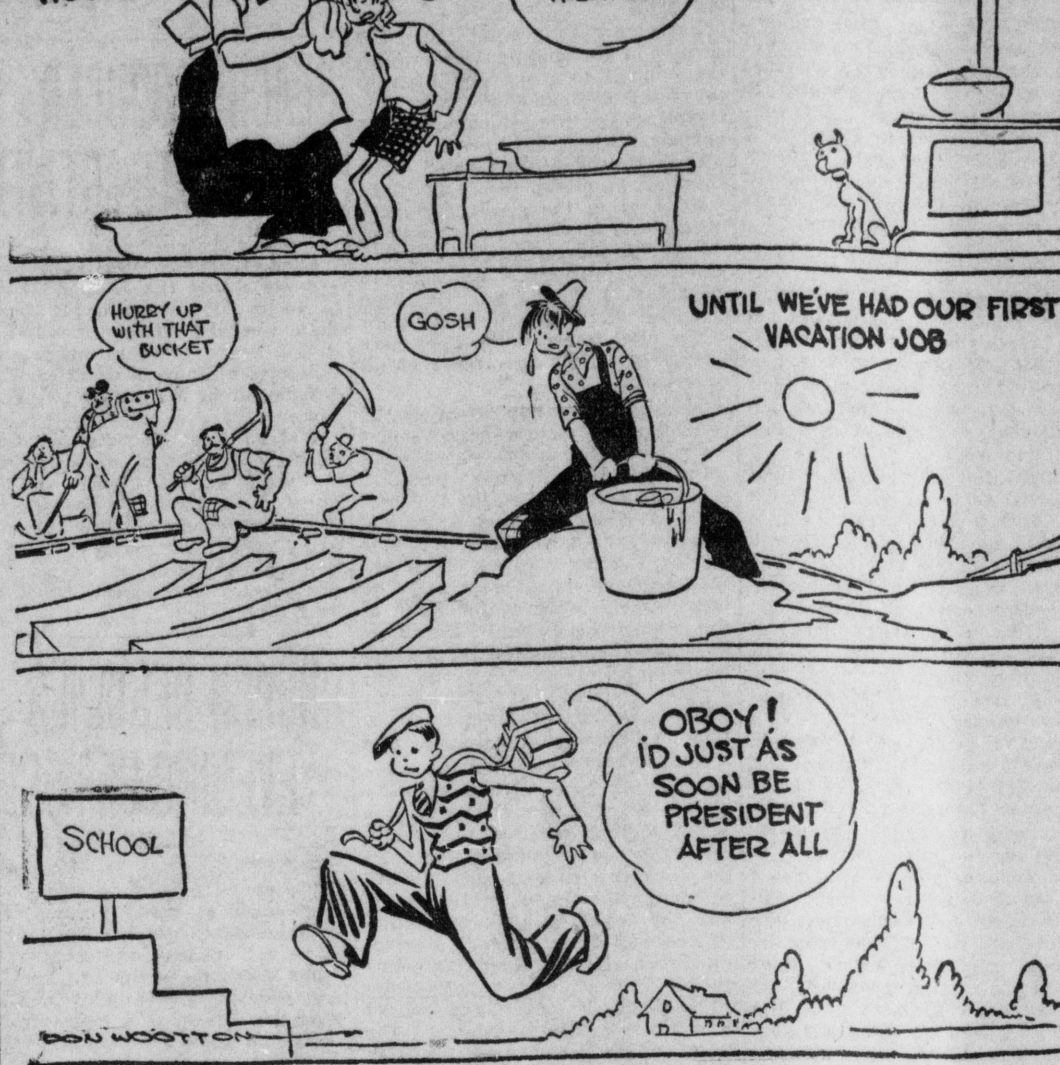

It was found that of the children exposed to pulmonary tuberculosis through other cases in the same family, 50 per cent became infected by the time they were six years old, and that those underweight showed a much larger percentage of tuberculosis than those not underweight.

One-third of the cases of pulmonary tuberculosis were in children who were not underweight. This evidence may be taken as conclusive that all children, regardless of their weight, should be given a thorough examination for tuberculosis before they are 15 years old.

A much safer rule is to see that every child, just as every adult, receives a complete physical examination at least once each year. The detection of disease in the earliest stage is the most important measure for the prolongation of life.

Obedience to Law

San Bernardino Sun

In his somewhat impromptu controversy with Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, at Charlottesville, Va., over the prohibition question, former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, quoted the inscription over the courthouse at Worcester, Mass., "Obedience to law is liberty." In his sober judgment every American is compelled to subscribe to that definition of liberty. Without law there is no liberty in its true sense. Unrestrained freedom of action produces anarchy, which word literally means just that, "without law." We associate the word with a terrible state of society, in which the strong get what they are able to grasp and hold and the weak get nothing but oppression and death. We get this meaning of the word from the actual conduct of those who call themselves anarchists.

But we have half anarchists and quarter anarchists who resent the application of that name to themselves, yet they learn it by their obedience to law. No matter how many enactments there may be on statute books, just to the extent that they are not obeyed the country is without law and those who are disobedient are anarchists to the extent of their disobedience. It only requires enough disobedience and sufficient people who disobey to produce a complete state of anarchy. Therefore a lawbreaker has no justification for resentment when he is termed an anarchist.

Governor Ritchie admitted McAdoo's contention that a community had the right to restrain the complete freedom of action of its members when the welfare of the whole was affected, but he insisted that the state or the municipality should be such community and not the nation. Mr. McAdoo defended the federal right of regulation of the conduct of citizens for the common welfare by saying that "community means the unit of government having jurisdiction over the particular rights involved." He held that the liquor traffic affected the entire nation and therefore that the federal government had jurisdiction to determine just how far so-called personal rights were involved in its suppression.

Worth While Verse

WHY, YOU KNOW!

Do I love you? Can you ask me such a thing?
See that bird way up above us? See his wing?
How it seems to touch the blueness of the sky?
Dear, my love for you is reaching just as high!

Do I love you? Watch the sunlight on the sea;
See the lights and shadows dancing far and free!
Makes the water all a-glisten, gold for miles—
That's the way my love is gleaming 'neath your smiles!

Do I love you? See the meadows stretching far,
And the grass—just think of all the blades there are!
My, you couldn't count them, could you, in a year?
But my love is twice their number for you, dear!

School Opening Joyous

San Bernardino Sun

Appeal that it is the duty of newspaper editors to picture the opening of school as an occasion of joy rather than one of a disagreeable nature has been voiced by Helen Heffernan, chief of the division of rural education, California state department of education.

The old time cartoon that featured the boy and girl in gloom being herded back to the classroom has created an improper impression on the young people of America, in the opinion of the school authorities.

If there is anything to the power of impression then the newspapers have contributed to the general atmosphere of dread for the youngsters who await the sound of the school bell. For generations it has been the custom of cartoonists and the joke writers to pass out their pleasantly on the occasion of the opening of school. In her letter to the newspapers, Miss Heffernan declares:

The change in the attitude of newspaper editors toward the opening of schools is one of the pleasant occurrences in the life of the teachers. All over the country the fact has dawned upon the newspaper press that children quite generally like their teachers and enjoy school. Our schools are opening or about to open all over the great state of California. Everybody knows the power of suggestion. Everybody knows your power. If you, in your position to mould public opinion, should chronicle editorially the opening of school as a happy time at which children are returning to the benefits the public so liberally provides, I am certain you would render a service to children, to teachers, and to the communities they serve.

Would you be willing to do this? Teachers are not the fearful scarecrows armed with an ancient hickory stick, the cartoonists used to depict. Why not give the public a true picture of happy children and their friends? Your editorial will create a "mental set" of inestimable value to progressive education.

Incident upon the opening of school come the great dangers to children going to and from school of becoming the victims of traffic accidents. Statistics give us the shocking information that five deaths occur daily among children of school age in our country as a result of traffic accidents. Warn your reader-motivator of this danger! A motorist guilty of speeding in the neighborhood of a school is a potential murderer.

School age is the happiest period of life for boys and girls. The school is the greatest factor of these years. Therefore it must be that the school contributes largely to happiness. The property owners of the state contribute many millions of dollars for education. Education is endowed with more money than all the other functions of local government combined. These taxpayers mean that boys and girls should make the best of the opportunity.

The conclusions of the educators that there needs to be co-operation in painting a more cheerful picture on the occasion of the opening of school are certainly worthy of thought.

How Newspapers Succeed

Elyria (Ohio) Chronicle-Telegram

Many newspaper consolidations have occurred during the past year in cities of the intermediate class. The latest major merger was in Pittsburgh, reducing the number of daily papers from five to three. It was only a few years ago that there were seven daily papers in Pittsburgh.

At Memphis the News-Scimitar and the Press have been consolidated. The Denver Times and the Express have merged. In Buffalo, three dailies have combined in one publication. Added to these are other consolidations at Louisville, Trenton and Des Moines. These mergers have involved large and important publications. In the smaller fields the weeding out process is even more pronounced and is in progress throughout the length and breadth of the country.

There is one overwhelming reason for these consolidations. Advertisers have refused to patronize newspapers which represent duplicate circulation. When a field is covered, it is covered and fifty newspapers could not add to the number of homes to be reached, nor to the pulling of an advertisement.

Advertising has come to be bought and handled on a much more scientific basis than it was even five years ago. It was a matter of definite fact that it was in the old days. It has finally dawned on the advertisers, local and general, that it is needless waste of money to run a given advertisement in newspapers which merely carry it into homes already reached. Such expenditures are tantamount to calling persons twice on the phone to tell them the same fact.

It has also been discovered that newspaper publishers, in making a desperate effort to keep from going into bankruptcy, stoop to practices that are not only questionable, but highly dangerous to the peace and welfare of a community.

In an attempt to attract attention to themselves they resort to publication of matter that is not merely sensational but fatal to the spirit of unity and harmony in the city of publication.

To be clean and wholesome and worthy, newspapers must be successful. A struggling newspaper is a hazard in any community. In an attempt to keep from starving much that is demoralizing and mischievous has been printed in columns of moribund newspapers.

Advertisers are consolidating their campaigns more and more. And this trend in American life accounts for the growing list of newspaper consolidations.

Added to this disinclination of the advertiser to spread his publicity about promiscuously, the costs of newspaper production have increased to the point that requires heavy expenditures to meet the persistently ascending costs. Salaries, materials, news service and all the other factors are not only more expensive but new demands upon the modern daily newspaper require increasingly heavy outlays on every issue.

The present period is one in which every newspaper is facing the "survival of the fittest" theory, especially turned in its own direction.

Mount Whitney

N. C. Wilson in National Motorist

It is neither beauty of form nor hostility of manner, but the simple power of statistics, that makes Mount Whitney distinguishable from all other peaks. After numerous measurements of all rivals to him has been awarded the belt as undisputed champion of 48 states for altitude. In consequence, his name looms on the western map. But he amounts to more on the map than among his fellow mountains. He's champion, all right, all right, but a champ without the big punch.

Although 14,501 feet above the sea, Whitney is largely overpowered by his rivals. Ten of these share with him a rarefied blue air above 14,000 feet. About sixty more stand at between 13,000 and 14,000.

In tumbled California Sierra just north of parallel 36 degrees, 30 minutes, any spot lower than 12,000 feet seems like a valley. Whitney has been ascended by elderly ladies, little children, and unambitious burros. He wears neither mantle of year-long snow nor armour of shining glacier. He offers plenty of desperate precipitous, but they are all easily avoidable. Hundreds of people scale his slopes every summer.

Clarence King, the conqueror of Mount Tyndall in 1874, was the first discoverer of Whitney for what it is, the apex of the Sierra. King wanted as much as anything in the world to be the first man to attain that coign. So in 1871 he tried it. It is a matter of history that he came back flushed with success, only to find later that he had scaled the wrong peak. When others were making the crest and publishing their report, revealing his blunder, King hurried back from the Atlantic seaboard to clamber up the real Whitney and shake his feet at the false knob five miles away.

King wasn't the only one to thus fall victim to the ponderous jokester. The true summit has revealed its secret to a host of mountaineers. The true summit has repeatedly sent his seekers off after the wrong objective, which has been variously called Sheep Mountain, Old Mount Whitney, Fairview peak and now Mount Langley. Langley looks like Whitney and long carried a canister of his crest in which were lodged the names of those who had confidently "climbed Whitney this day."

Presumably they have ever since been just as happy. But Langley is five miles distant and 453 feet lower than the true apex of the United States and has been without a shred of character ever since the seventies, when two explorers rode mules to the top. A Chinese cook, a good friend of mine, has since duplicated this feat on a horse. No self-respecting sporting peak likes to be climbed by a horse. Least of all, by a "kitchen" horse ridden by a fat Chinaman. So Langley is "out" as a real hot-spot mountain from this date on. Viewed from the west, over the Kings, Kern and Kaweah river canyons, Whitney is helmet-shaped with visor pointing east. He stands close to the head of the great east ridge of the Kern canyon.
